Nazis Reported Demanding Air Bases in Iran

Fostering Activities of Agents, Soviet News Source States.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

A broadcast by Tass, official Soviet Russian news agency, declared yesterday that Germany is demanding air bases in Iran and is fostering activities of her agents in that country which are designed to overthrow the Teheran government if it does not meet Nazi wishes.

"According to competent quarters, provocative activities of German agents in Iran are continuing," said the broadcast. "The Germans have been arriving in Iran via Istanbul.

Fuel Demanded.
"German activities in Iran have developed activities aiming at overthrow of the existing government if the latter does not meet German demands.

"According to reliable sources, Germany demands Iranian air bases and fuel for German aviation which, according to German plans, would operate from Iranian bases.

"Besides, the German minister in Teheran, Von Etzel, warned the Iranian government that Germany would sever diplomatic relations with Iran in case German citizens are deported.

"In northern Iran German agents have set up an espionage and diversionist organization, the main task of which is to provoke sabotage acts and uprisings against the Iranian government.

"They supply this organization with money and arms.

"German agents penetrate the army, too.

Protest Visitors.
Meanwhile, British and Russian envoys at Teheran were authoritatively reported to have issued a second warning to the Iranian (Persian) government that the "excessively large numbers of Germans" in that vital Middle Eastern land were a continuing cause of alarm to London and Moscow.

While there were intimations in some circles that a decisive stroke is being considered by the two allies in the Middle East, the nature of such an action was left to the vaguest inferences.

Reports published last week suggested that the Russians might adopt strong military measures if they deem it necessary to stamp out any German threat of infiltration at their southern side door.

In Key Positions.
Although informed quarters in London considered these reports purely speculative, it was recalled that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, in a recent speech in the House of Commons, forecast a "coming blow" in the Middle East and pointedly advised all countries of the region, and Iran especially, to welcome British action as a safeguard of their own freedom.

Iran is strategically located between Iraq, which the British have occupied, and Afghanistan, and is important because of its oil resources, which are rated even superior to those of Iraq. Moreover, Iran affords a land bridge between the Persian Gulf and Russian Caucasus.

Many of the agents, variously estimated at a few hundred to 3,000, are reported to have key positions in telegraph, radio and other communications services.

GOLDEN BOY ALL SET—Warren Wilson, Atlanta heavyweight boxer, will open his campaign for the world's title soon. He left for New York last night, and will go from there to Pompton Lakes to train with Lou Nova. Wilson is shown with his 8-months-old son, Chris.

Atlanta Heavyweight Will Join Nova at Training Camp Tonight

Warren Wilson, 23, Expected to Make Big-Time Debut on Louis Card in September At Yankee Stadium.

By AL SHARP.

Warren Wilson, 23-year-old Atlanta heavyweight boxer, will start up that road paved with gold bricks right away. He is headed in the direction of the heavyweight championship of the world.

Taken in tow by three wealthy sportsmen, including Ben Gattins, of Rumson, N. J., and Atlanta, Wilson will be given every opportunity to win the crown.

The first of these opportunities starts tonight when he will join Challenger Lou Nova at Pompton Lakes, his training camp. The next one will be his big-time debut, which is scheduled tentatively on the Louis-Nova card of September 19 at Yankee Stadium.

Be that as it may, Wilson is all set for that battle to the top. He recently finished at Clemson College, where he won the Southern Conference heavyweight championship for two years in a row. And he's ready for the climb.

Gattins, Mrs. Rufus Finch, racing enthusiast, and Ed Strothers, Jones, New York polo player, will pay the freight while Wilson goes to the real school of hard knocks. They have hired Ray Arcel, best handler in the game, to take care of Wilson. Bernie Gimbel is in-entricked, president of Madison Square Garden, and Mike Jacobs, king of fistiana.

Now their experiment, which reads like a fairy tale, is going to get under way.

"It's a perfect set-up as far as I'm concerned," said Wilson last night before leaving for New York. "It's a swell chance for me. I need experience all right, but I'll get that."

"That's all he needs," chimed in his father. "Not because he's my son am I saying this, but Warren really has the punch. He has a real right and he can jab with that left, too."

Before he went to Clemson, Warren reached the semi-finals of the Golden Gloves tournaments in Chicago and New York.

President Maps Closer Ties To Britain, Russia

Holds Conference With Hull on Return To Capital.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—President Roosevelt came back to the capital today from his momentous conferences with Winston Churchill and immediately began mapping specific methods for achieving closer anti-Axis collaboration among the United States, Britain and Russia.

Within half an hour after his forenoon arrival, the Chief Executive met with Secretary Hull at the White House for a discussion of the seething international situation. It was understood that he wanted to talk to his secretary of state particularly about the strengthening of French ties with Germany and the crisis in the Far East.

Tomorrow, congressional leaders have an appointment with Mr. Roosevelt at which another lease-lend appropriation, perhaps upwards of $10,000,000,000, is a probable topic of conversation.

In Touch With Europe.
As a result of the conference at sea with the British Prime Minister and high British military and naval officials, Mr. Roosevelt was more abreast of developments in the war in Europe than of events in the Far East and in France.

Together, beneath the protecting guns of British and American men of war, President and Prime Minister had drafted a joint declaration which spoke of the "final destruction of the Nazi tyranny" and outlined their program for a post-war world.

They proposed to Soviet leader Joseph Stalin, and he agreed, that a conference should be held in Moscow to discuss the means of getting a maximum of supplies to Russia for her defense against Nazi attack.

It was presumed that the discussion included other specific anti-Axis steps which may have been agreed to at the Atlantic conferences. That far-reaching measures were in the making was taken for granted. But a press conference which Mr. Roosevelt held yesterday when he came back to American soil at Rockland, Me., produced not even a vague delineation of the specific steps which now are to be undertaken by the three powers.

Hull spent nearly two and a half hours with the President and when he left the White House told reporters that "the conference was a general interchange of information in which we brought each other up to date on the international situation."

There was good reason to believe that they discussed particularly the whole trend of developments in the Far East, including Japan's refusal to set the S. S. President Coolidge call at a Japanese port to pick up 100 Americans who desire to return home.

Defense officials drafted the proposed order last week for Mr. Roosevelt's consideration upon his return from his cruise and conferences with Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

There was no word, however, as to whether the chief executive had yet found time to give it attention.

On Saturday, a high defense official had predicted that the government would take control of the shipyard within 48 hours to get

Order for Seizure of Shipyard At Kearny Ready for President

Production on $493,000,000 of Naval, Merchant Fleet Construction Involved; Threat of Telephone Strike Averted.

By The Associated Press.

An executive order for the government to take over the strike-bound Federal Shipbuilding and Drydock Company was understood yesterday to be lying on President Roosevelt's desk at the White House.

Defense officials drafted the proposed order last week for Mr. Roosevelt's consideration upon his return from his cruise and conferences with Prime Minister Winston Churchill.

There was no word, however, as to whether the chief executive had yet found time to give it attention.

On Saturday, a high defense official had predicted that the government would take control of the shipyard within 48 hours to get resumption of production on $493,000,000 of naval and merchant ship construction.

The huge yard at Kearny, N. J., has been idle since August 7, when the CIO Industrial Union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers struck because of the management's refusal to grant a contract including a maintenance of union clause recommended by the Defense Mediation Board. The union claims as members about 16,000 of the 18,000 workers.

Meanwhile, Irving Abramson, president of the New Jersey state CIO council, said affiliated unions would send delegations to the yards for a mass picketing demonstration at 10 o'clock this morning. One spokesman estimated 10,000 persons would participate.

Among other labor developments was the apparent removal of the threat of any immediate strike in the telephone industry. The Association of Communication Workers agreed in response to a request from federal conciliators, not to order a walk-out pending action by a conciliation panel on its contracts dispute with Western Electric Company. Some 13 locals had authorized a strike because of the breakdown in negotiations with the company.

The Fairfield (Ala.) mill of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company reopened after a shutdown Saturday because of a walkout by 550 men from the tinning department. The dispute was settled with acceptance by the CIO steel workers' committee of an incentive wage scale offered by the management. The incentive plan was reported by the union to offer up to 20 per cent extra pay provided work reached certain standards.

Atlanta Youth Eliminated in SoapBox Finals

Paul DeWald Trails Winner .42 of a Second At Akron.

By H. M. VANDEVENDER.

Constitution Special Correspondent.

AKRON, Ohio, Aug. 17.—Paul DeWald, Atlanta Soap Box Derby winner, came within .42 of a second of being the national champion here this afternoon as Claud Smith, a 14-year-old Akron youth, raced over the finishing line ahead of all the rest and was crowned the National Soap Box Derby king.

Smith covered the 1,025-foot course in 26.85 seconds, while the Atlanta hopeful came in at 27.27 seconds.

As a climax to winning the national title, Smith captured the international title by defeating Eduardo Benton, of Mexico City, and Douglas Bone, of Belleville, Ontario.

DeWald, with his father and mother among the 50,000 spectators at the finals, scored a victory in the fourth heat when he eliminated Harold Piper, of Newark, N. J., and Richard George, of Amarillo, Texas.

Georgia made a good showing in the derby, with entries from Augusta and Columbus also winning their first heats. The other Georgia representatives were William Diller, of Columbus, and J. Marshall Vann, of Augusta.

Smith, whose brother, George, finished in third place in the 1940 classic, broke away at the beginning of the final heat and had his opponents trailing him all the way down the track.

The national meet was sponsored by the Chevrolet Motor Company, while the north Georgia contest, won by DeWald in Atlanta several weeks ago, was sponsored by The Atlanta Constitution.

Soviet Black Sea Base Falls To Hitler Army

Long Siege Ends as Red Forces Evacuate Nikolaev.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The Red army struck back savagely at the Germans yesterday in the Ukraine, launching counterattacks which were reported to have driven the Nazis back six to eight miles from a city identified only as "K".

Red armies also counterattacked in the central sector, where Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's western forces were declared by an official communique to have destroyed a large German unit.

A front line dispatch to the army newspaper Red Star said counterthrusts by Marshal Semeon Budenny's southwestern troops in the Ukraine saved the city of "K" from the German occupation at a cost of 20,000 dead and wounded to the Nazis.

The Russian counterattacks were carefully prepared and carried out after the Germans reached within five miles of the city, this account said.

Forced to Entrench.
Soviet resistance first forced the Germans to halt and entrench themselves in field fortifications on the edge of a forest outside the city, the Red Star reporter said.

Then big Russian 122-millimeter guns laid down an intensive artillery barrage, he added, and after the artillery silenced German mortars Red army infantry charged across a 300-yard field, mopped up machinegun nests and entered the forest, forcing the Germans to retreat.

Similar counter-assaults were said to have been launched in other sectors around the city and the Russians said their forces still were going forward after advancing up to eight miles.

The German 44th and 99th infantry divisions were reported defeated in these battles. An example of the slaughter of the Nazis, Red Star said prisoners disclosed the 218th German infantry regiment dwindled from 600 to 200 men.

The farthest point of the German advance to this undisclosed city was said to have been "Klin Height" from which they were declared now in full retreat.

Nikolaev Said Taken.
Capture of Nikolaev, Soviet Black Sea naval base and industrial center on the Bug river estuary, 60 miles northeast of Odessa, was officially reported by Berlin earlier, while German military reports said the productive Krivori Rog mining region west of the Dnieper river had been mopped up and 7,000 prisoners taken. Nikolaev, which has a population of 140,000 and dominates the river mouth, fell after a long siege by the Nazis and Hungarian troops, the German High Command said. A Soviet communique admitted the city had been evacuated and was in the hands of the Germans.

Sea Fight Vital, Nazi Admiral Says

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Vice Admiral Walter Warzecha, speaking at the opening of a naval exhibition in Cologne yesterday, said "this war demonstrates even more than the World War that the final decision of great wars must always be gained by fighting on the world's seas."

An empire such as the British with access to raw materials throughout the world is destined to "destruction if it is unable to maintain its overseas connections," the admiral declared.

"For that reason," he continued, "the two opponents, Germany and Britain, meet wherever the cutting off of British supplies is at stake. Although our fleet is inferior to the English it nevertheless has snatched the initiative with bold determination."

Operating from bases along a 3,000-mile seacoast the German navy has evaded the natural blockade the British Isles present to Europe, he said.

Nazis Grill Allen on Charges Of Stealing Secret Documents

Writer Is Forced To Explain Possession of de Gaullist, Red Papers.

(Editor's Note: This is the seventh of a series of articles in which an American war correspondent tells the story of his arrest and imprisonment by German forces in Occupied France. The following story tells of his appearance before French police to answer charges of "theft" of important documents.)

By JAY ALLEN.
Copyright, 1941, by the North American Newspaper Alliance.
NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—There was quite a gathering: The Herr Kriegsrat from Le Creusot and three other officers I hadn't seen before.

Dog-Bite led off, reading a summons from the Procureur De La Republique in which Monsieur Allen was called up to reveal his part in the theft from the French police of documents "affecting the security of the state."

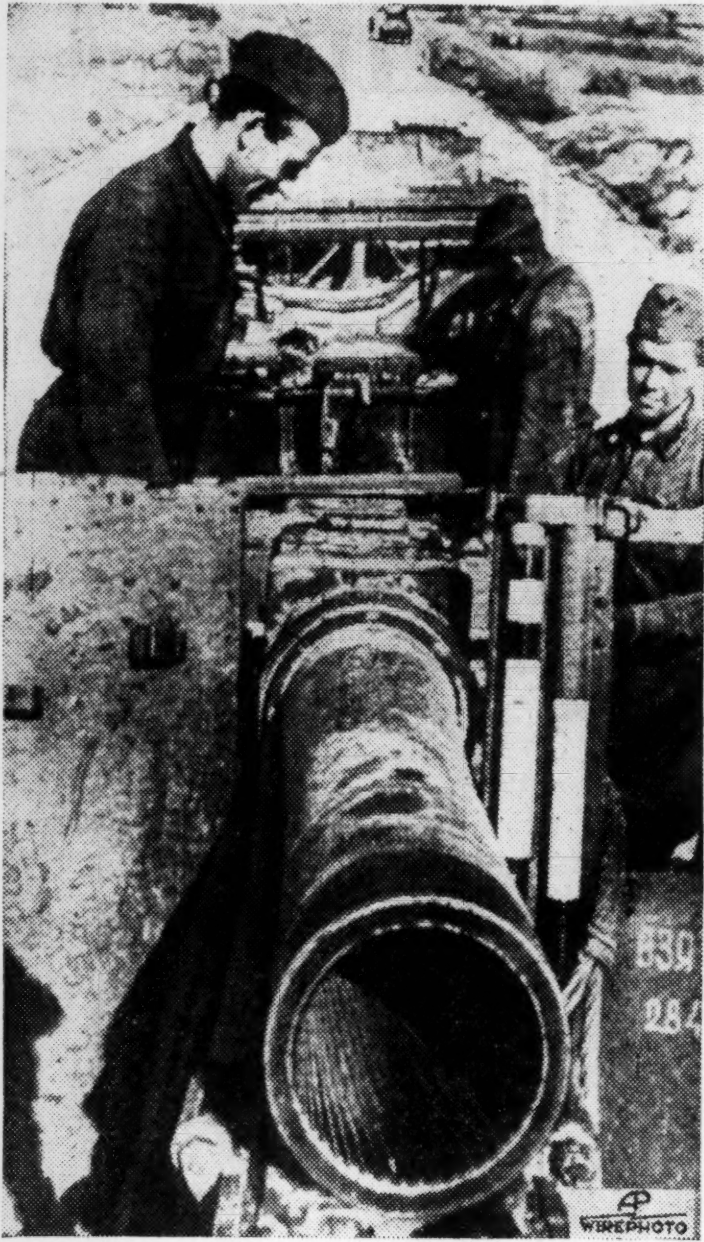

Dog-Bite then went on to inform me that one Georges Vikar, a Hungarian journalist, aged 20, and two inspectors of the French surete had been arrested in Vichy, accused of stealing material from the surete file on Communist and Gaullist propaganda—"reports of a highly secret and confidential character," which, according to Vikar's confession, had been shown to Monsieur Allen and photostats thereof left with him.

Then it all came back to me. Late in February a famished little citizen, who had worked vaguely for Paris-Soir, asked me for work. During our conversation it developed that he could find me examples of Gaullist, Communist and other propaganda which I had tried without success to obtain from the ministry of interior. The French press in the free zone was rabid on the Communist "menace" (while until the attack on Russia, Communists were never mentioned in the occupied zone), but, for some reason, this correspondent could never get the police to give him any details on the menace.

Gaullist leaflets.
Vikar gave me a sheaf of Gaullist leaflets and Communist handouts, including the microscopic clandestine edition of L'Humanite, organ of the French Communist party. There were also several reports marked "secret and confidential" on Gaullist and Communist activities which were then most dissimilar.

Vikar said I couldn't have the stuff but offered to copy it all. I suggested photostating. The "secret and confidential" reports did not, however, seem very exciting. When he brought me the photostats I threw them in my suitcase with my other papers and forgot them.

Dog-Bite summoned me to explain. I did as well as I could against his constant badgering. He was throwing his weight around to impress the Germans. Very tough he was. I said I had asked

TURN ABOUT'S FAIR PLAY—The fortunes of war delivered this heavy German gun into the hands of the Reds, according to Moscow sources. The artillery piece now may be turned against its former owners.

no one to steal documents from the police, had suborned no officials (in fact I had paid Vikar the handsome sum of $12 for his work) and I did not think documents "affecting the security of the state" were left around where underlings could hand them to 20-year-old Hungarian journalists.

Here my handsome Nazi, whom we will call Swivel-Eye for accuracy, went into action.
"Infantile, Herr Allen, infantile! Whom do you expect to believe such tales? Is it a common thing in America for newspapermen to get hold of official documents?"

My answer was, "Yes."

Dog-Bite snarled.
Then Dog-Bite, pointing an accusing finger at me, snarled, "Very pretty, very pretty. Monsieur Allen lays hold of secret documents on March 1 and on March 3 hot-foots it across the line for Paris. To whom did you hand them over in Paris?"

I was curious to know what reasons they might give for an American newspaperman carrying such documents across the demarcation line into occupied France.

Swivel-Eye brought his face up close to me and fixed that one enormous mobile eye into mine like a spotlight. I had a feeling that hypnotic effects were immediately to set in. But nothing special happened. He said, "That's what we are here to find out."

I said that I had wanted to hand over to the Russians police reports on Russian activity I could have done so inasmuch as my hotel in Vichy was chock full with Soviet embassy people, none of whom I had the honor to know, however. And as for the report on Gaullist activity I knew Gaullists who were better informed about their own activity than the police seemed to be, judging from these reports. In Paris I had no connections at all.

Dog-Bite said, "Where did you stay in Paris? I have followed your trail for two weeks. I can't find out where you slept."

I refused to tell him, saying that even the Germans had not insisted on that point. He grew violent.

Swivel-Eye then drew up and focused his lamp on me.

"I warn you that you are in a bad spot and if you do not answer my French colleague truthfully you will regret it."

I admit that I was bothered but, watching the faces of the officers of the military tribunal, I got the impression that they were as bewildered as I and a little embarrassed by the behavior of Swivel-Eye and Dog-Bite.

Swivel-Eye goes on.

Swivel-Eye went on. "We know a lot about you, Herr Allen. I won't tell you all we know but I will cite a few details and you will see that we are wise to your activities. I will cite a name or two. . . . He drew back and with great drama said, "Do you know Jack Sandford? Do you know Andre Glanier?"

I answered, "Sure, old pals, correspondents like myself. Sandford, London Daily Herald; Glanier, Exchange Telegraph. What about them?"

"Ah," he said in triumph, "you confess to knowing them."

"I do. I have known them for 15 years."

Then he brought in the name of an English lady who has lived in many capitals. I knew her.

"Ah, you confess. Where is she now?"

"As far as I know, with her husband, who has strong Nazi sympathies, in Rumania, which your troops occupy."

I suppose he had picked up some few facts about my friendship from some German newspaperman in Paris who had known me. I felt that vast sense of relief that other men who have gone through far more serious trouble with the Gestapo and S. S. tell me they have felt when the great sleuths start cross-questioning you on irrelevancies. Which is proof that they have nothing on you—no facts at all.

"Confess," said Swivel-Eye, "that you have many connections in London."

"I have. I have worked in and out of London for years."

"Confess that your name is mentioned in secret reports of the Comintern."

I said I was not privileged to consult the secret reports of the Comintern and so didn't know.

"Confess that you have dangerous tie-ups all over Europe."

Knew Many People.
I said that I had worked as a correspondent in Europe since 1924 and knew many people. I mentioned some names, "Dollfuss," "The Swine," roared Swivel-Eye. "Von Papen," he was silent. "Roehm," he snorted.

"You're trying to make a fool of me," I said I was not trying to make a fool of him.

Then we put on something like the mad scene from Lucia, except that we were three instead of six. Dog-Bite strode up and down and delivered a philippic on my Jewish, Masonic connections in Vichy. Vikar was a canaille—a Jewish canaille. Swivel-Eye, finger and eye on me, went on with his denunciation, "You are an international trouble-maker, an incendiary, like Colonel Donovan in Yugoslavia (I was very proud.)"

To add to the confusion I tried to answer both at once, told Dog-Bite, Vikar was a Catholic convert which is true, and told Swivel-Eye that I was just a reporter, so help me.

It was Swivel-Eye who got the floor. He was bellowing, "Come on now, confess—You are an agent of Churchill and of the Comintern."

I had been forced to stand up and I was tired. I said something wearily that he ought to make up his mind which, that the Comintern and Churchill were two separate and distinct institutions. I said that in fact I thought the Germans had some kind of pact with the Bolsheviks.

This was in April. Stalin had not yet made up his mind and Hitler had not yet made it up for him by launching the blitzkrieg against him.

Swivel-Eye was in flood. "You are like that man of evil, Donovan (again I was flattered) who has just plunged Yugoslavia into the horrors of war. But he had help, he had the Comintern. We know all about it."

News to Allen.

This was news to me, the first intimation I had that all was not well between Berlin and Moscow. Swivel-Eye bolted the door and you'll talk! We know how to make standing close to me said, "Now 'em talk."

Desperately tired, I simply said, "I was a police reporter in America. We know how to make 'em talk, too, but I have never yet seen a detective lock himself in a room with a man twice his size." I can only think that he found the situation as silly as I did. He turned, unbolted the door and went out.

I followed and asked the way to the bathroom. A soldier took me down a long hall. I was about to close the door behind me when Swivel-Eye charged up and stood in it. "No you don't," he said.

I protested. He stood his ground and I mine. He held the door open and bellowed mostly in German. I couldn't catch it all—that I'd better watch out, that if I tried to escape I'd be shot like a dog.

Bathroom Interruption.

Assuming as much dignity as one can when interrupted in a bathroom I said that he seemed to forget that I was not alone.

"What do you mean 'not alone'?"

In the most sententious tone I could manage I got off a patriotic outburst which surprised me as much as it did S. S. "I have a government behind me. No American is alone anywhere in the world. . . ." etc. This is not exactly true because there are times when Washington can't do anything. In my case they could but I didn't know it at the time.

By that time everybody was watching the show. Swivel-Eye lost his head completely and began to push and shove. I said, eye on the officers of the court, "I won't touch me and you know it."

His face into mine again he asked "And why won't I touch you?"

I said the answer was mathematical, that there were 20 Germans in America for every American in occupied France and Germany. I am not sure this is true.

We all subsided and went back to the office. But the interrogation had bogged down. The officers seemed bored. One of them winked at me.

Swivel-Eye was a little deflated. "All right, Herr Allen, you go back to your cell. But you won't sleep tonight, I wager. For you have seen from the few facts I have revealed to you that we know all about you. In a few days you'll hear more."

Heard Nothing More.

I said I thought I would sleep all right. And I did. I heard nothing more of Swivel-Eye or of Dog-Bite. I half hoped that both would go on and on, like good characters in detective fiction all ways do.

I followed two months of silence except that, on the best of authority, Herr Allen learned that the military tribunal had been instructed to hold him in protective arrest even if he were sentenced and his sentence completed. Volunteers Enter 6th Week Of Training

A.W.V.S. Now Numbers 2,000; Enrollment Still Sought.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Atlanta women—2,000 of them—today will enter their sixth week of training under auspices of the American Women's Voluntary Service as a means of fostering interest in national defense.

Headed by Mrs. Trammell Scott, as president of the local group of the A. W. V. S., the women now enrolled are in a service, the purpose of which is designed for registering, grouping and training for volunteer positions of responsibility in times of national and local emergency.

All women who wish to serve their country may join according to Mrs. Scott, who announced pins are now on sale at headquarters for those workers who have completed the necessary number of hours required.

Registration Free.

It was also pointed out, and stressed, that the registration is free and voluntary and that the organization in no sense will duplicate the specialized work of the many splendid organizations already in the field.

To be eligible to take any of the courses, women must have attended 10 out of the 12 lectures on preparedness and must pass the Red Cross first aid course. Women who desire to prepare and train for local defense and emergency should always bear in mind the necessity and importance of doing so with the full co-operation with all local authorities.

Instruction courses are intended to fit women adequately in assisting their fellow citizens, and in co-ordinating with local authorities in times of emergency and preparation of national defense.

College Tour Halts to Renew Acquaintance

Piedmont Caravan Stopped in New Mexico By Friendly Officer.

It's a small world!

The Piedmont College educational tour from Demorest, Ga., traveling in four huge buses, a kitchenette, baggage truck, scout car and two passenger cars, was halted near Carlsbad, N. M., yesterday by six-foot-four, 220-pound Carl Davis, of the New Mexico state patrol.

Pat Willson, at the wheel of bus No. 3, sat tense when accosted by the officer.

"Noticed your Georgia tag and the Piedmont College insignia," he said. "Used to live in Tallapoosa. Had a teacher from Piedmont, name of Ruth Little. Any of you know her?"

Mrs. J. H. Martin, director of the caravan, recalled that Ruth was graduated cum laude and captained the Piedmont girls' basketball team that entered the national finals at Wichita, Kan. From that point into Carlsbad, the Piedmont caravan was under friendly police escort.

Renewed Confidence Comes When Old Debts Are Paid

Hundreds of Atlanta Families Take Advantage of New Loan Plan.

Most people can accomplish far greater results from their working efforts if they are not worried by financial problems. With old debts piled up, with duns for payment on account, a person just can not put his best effort into any job.

A great many people who have gotten into bad shape financially are investigating the new loan plan now available to Atlantans. This plan is to consolidate all debts and make a loan of sufficient size to pay up everything, and then to repay the loan over a long period of time. Loans of this type can be repaid in two months or can be handled up to two years where smaller payments are desired to meet a crowded budget. They can vary from fifty dollars to a thousand dollars, or more. For example—a person might easily find it difficult to pay up $500.00 worth of bills at one time, but could easily care for such an amount if divided over a two-year period.

Plans for this type loan have been worked out by the Southern Security and Investment Corporation to meet the individual needs of Atlantans. Loans are quickly and confidentially made on just a plain note, automobile, endorsement, furniture or other reasonable security. Many people are finding it advisable to visit the offices of "Southern Security" on the fourth floor of the 22 Marietta Street Building on the corner of Marietta and Broad Streets. There is no obligation to do business with these people unless they can give exactly the type loan the person needs.

This is one of a series of advertisements inviting readers to learn about a well-balanced plan which is meeting the needs of the borrowing public.

Dr. Guy Wells To Visit Dalton's Rotary Club

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.

DALTON, Ga., Aug. 17.—Dr. Guy H. Wells, district governor of Georgia Rotary Clubs, will pay his official visit to the Dalton club on Tuesday, August 26, at the weekly meeting, it was announced today by Carlton McCamy, president of the local organization. Dr. Wells will meet with the club's board of directors and administrative committees and address the members at the regular meeting at noon.

He will oppose J. H. Blair, present councilman from the third ward, who will seek re-election. The Democratic executive committee has not yet set the date for the primary.

P. H. (Pat) Orr has announced he will seek the office from the first ward, succeeding Earnest A. Sims, who will not run for re-election. J. Paul Eidson has indicated he will seek re-election from the second ward, and has no opposition so far.

Two well-known Atlantans are scheduled to speak this week at the lecture on citizenship in the preparedness course given at the Atlanta Woman's Club. At 11 o'clock tomorrow morning and at 8 o'clock tomorrow night, James J. Doran, of Davidson's, will speak on "The Retail Merchant and Defense," while Thursday, Lambdin Kay, representing the Community Fund, will address the women on "What Are We Defending?"

British Armada Hits Rhineland, Coastal Docks

13 RAF Planes Reported Lost in Heavy Inland Assault.

LONDON, Aug. 17.—(P)—RAF fighters on offensive sweeps across the English channel and over northern France destroyed seven German fighters today while other aircraft scored a torpedo hit on the stern of an "enemy tanker" off Le Touquet, France, the British reported tonight.

Two RAF fighters and one bomber were reported lost in this latest series of attacks on Germany's military machine.

Today's raids followed closely upon night attacks by considerable forces of British bombers on Rhineland industrial cities Saturday night. Flying through dirty weather, the RAF bombed Cologne, Düsseldorf, Duisburg and attacked docks at Rotterdam and Ostend.

Thirteen RAF planes were missing after the attacks last night, the air ministry said, while one British bomber destroyed a Nazi fighter.

To Smash Industry.

The air ministry news service said large factories were left burning from powerful bombs dropped in the three Rhineland cities.

Air Minister Sir Archibald Sinclair, speaking to bomber crews, declared:

"It is the fighters who saved us from defeat last autumn and it is the bombers who are going to smash the war industries of Germany and break the will to win of the German people."

That the RAF was continuing its long offensive against German-occupied territories was seen in an authoritative report that our German fighters were destroyed by the RAF fighters over the English channel and northern France today.

The admiralty reported a "determined but unsuccessful" German air attack last night on a British bomber at an industrial area in which one German bomber was destroyed and two were severely damaged.

Crashed in Sea.

"The enemy was met by gunfire both from the ships in the convoy and from our own," admiralty declared. "One bomber crashed into the sea amongst the convoy and of the damaged aircraft one was burning fiercely when last seen. There were no casualties in our ships."

British planes shot down yesterday and last night while Nazi planes sank two merchantmen totaling 5,000 tons off the east England coast. The Nazi report possibly referred to the convoy attack disclosed by the admiralty.

Japanese - Held Missionaries Reported Freed

Press Bureau Says No Americans Under Detention.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 17.—(P)—Southern Presbyterian missionaries detained at Tsingkiang by the Japanese military were released yesterday, the Japanese consulate general here informed the American consulate general today.

Simultaneously, the Japanese army press bureau issued a statement denying that any Americans "are under detention"—but the statement significantly omitted saying whether any Americans previously had been detained.

The army statement also referred only to the town of Hwaii, 12 miles from Tsingkiang.

Last Thursday "Presbyterian missionaries" were reported seized on July 31 the missionary hospital and other property at Tsingkiang, 215 miles northwest of Shanghai, and had virtually imprisoned nine American physicians and missionaries there. Missionary authorities surmised it was in retaliation for freeing of Japanese assets in the United States.

Headquarters in South.

The mission has headquarters in Nashville, Tenn.

The Japanese army statement charged that mission authorities at Hwaii had admitted and apologized for spying on behalf of the Chungking and U. S. Communist new fourth army in the vicinity of Hwaii. It also alleged 19 Chinese Communist troops were under treatment at the Hwaii Mission hospital, of whom 16 were allowed to escape before the Japanese captured the city late in July.

The Presbyterians here quickly denied the Japanese allegations, pointing out that their local missionary in Hwaii is Miss Lillian Wells, 45, of Johnson City, Tenn., and that they do not maintain a hospital in Hwaii.

Charges Denied.

These authorities said it was possible some Chungking sympathizers were treated at the Hwaii hospital, but that there was absolutely no truth to charges that the missionaries had used the hospital for spying.

The Presbyterians also announced they had received a letter from Miss Wells dated August 11 and reporting she had been detained by the Japanese military since August 1, confined to her home with one servant.

Miss Wells also wrote she had learned by courier that nine American men and women missionaries in Tsingkiang were confined to the second floor of one mission residence for one week. They were allowed to obtain clothing from their homes and were returned to confinement under strict military guard "and without sufficient food," she advised headquarters.

PRESCOTT, Ark., Aug. 17.—(AP)—A Negro sharecropper approached two soldiers who were reconnoitering the 35th Division bivouac area near Prescott, and asked them when the shooting was going to start.

Told "some time Monday," he insisted on knowing the exact time.

front operations were developing successfully and totals of captured war material and prisoners were increasing, the German high command added.

The Russians asserted that the forces of Marshal Semeon Timoshenko had destroyed a large German unit in a counter-attack on the central front, while the Germans pressed flank offensives in the Ukraine and the northern lakes region.

Moscow meanwhile announced that a Britain-Russian commercial and economic accord providing for a large scale exchange of goods had been signed, thus putting the Allies' co-operation on a business basis.

'Nazis Still Strong.'

The agreement followed extension of the Russian-United States made treaty for a year while preparations were being made for a three-power conference in Moscow to decide upon distribution of military resources.

Pravda, Communist party organ, said the Germans, though weakened by eight weeks of bloody warfare, were still very strong and warned that a protracted struggle would require great sacrifices.

Today's communiqué said the 452d and 485th regiments of the 262d German infantry division had been completely smashed in recent fighting in the southeast.

The 262d was described as "one of the best in the German army" and a veteran of the Battle of France.

Other regiments of this same division, the communiqué said, have lost 80 per cent of their manpower and equipment and it "no longer represents any fighting value."

Still another German infantry division—the 94th—was said to have lost 70 per cent of its personnel. Five hundred officers and men of this division surrendered, the Russians announced.

Because of their heavy losses, the Russians declared the Germans now are "constantly throwing into action fresh units which find their graves on the battlefield."

"For every meter of Soviet land captured the Germans are paying with heaps of corpses," the communiqué added.

Hidden Guns, Modern Units, Ring Moscow

"Archies" Rise Out of Ground to Fire At Bombers.

MOSCOW, Aug. 17.—(P)—Anti-aircraft guns that rise out of the ground at the approach of raiding planes to send up a screen of fire and then disappear after their work is completed are defending Moscow from the German Luftwaffe.

Foreign correspondents were permitted today to inspect one of the batteries which form a ring around the Soviet capital.

It proved to be a modern unit with four medium caliber guns, complete with a range-finding detector, a newly developed predictor to translate the altitude, course and speed of a plane into the angle of the gun and the timing of the shell.

The location of the battery appeared to be an empty and peaceful wheat field, broken in only two places by bomb craters.

At an order of the commanding officer, camouflaged pits opened and the long barrels of the guns pointed skyward. Within a few seconds a range was shouted from the predictor post buried at the center of the battery and the guns were ready to fire.

An officer said the guns fired 198 shells during last night's air raid alarm at Moscow and not a single plane succeeded in passing the battery's position.

The battery is credited with downing four raiders, two by daylight and two at night.

Officers said the guns could fire 30 shells a minute at great altitude and expressed confidence that they could match any German plane.

Living quarters of the crew are camouflaged as completely as the guns. Barracks are underground. The crews, except for the men on duty, were at lunch when the correspondents arrived.

Role of Liaison Agent Urged For France

VICHY, Aug. 17.—(UP)—An appeal for the United States to recognize France as "liaison agent" between the Axis new order in Europe and the Western Hemisphere appeared today in an officially approved editorial in the authoritative newspaper Le Temps.

Urging the American people to understand "de facto situations which realities of the hour make necessary," the editorial reaffirmed the assertion by Marshal Henri Philippe Petain in a recent radio speech that his government is anxious to improve Franco-American relations.

As liaison agent between Europe and the Western Hemisphere, the editorial said, France can enter the Axis new order as an important power and still retain her long-time friendship with the United States.

"The other side of the Atlantic must understand that it is within the very framework of its position as a great power in a reconciled Europe that France can fulfill with a greater chance of success her mission of natural liaison between our continent and the American continent," Le Temps said.

"There can be no durable peace without a reconciled Europe," the editorial said. "That is the European point of view which has been one of the essential arguments of all French policy throughout the fluctuations of our history."

"If one has a healthy and just conception of things, there is nothing therein which is incompatible with the French genius and that instinct of liberty which remains the best element of French influence in the world."

Sources close to Marshal Petain said conversations between France and Germany on collaboration probably will remain at a standstill for several weeks at least because of the German-Russian war. Petain's radio speech had brought absolutely no change in Franco-German relations, they said.

Admiral Jean Francois Darlan left tonight for Paris on a special train for a brief visit.

Grant To Reveal Resignation Facts

BANGKOK, Thailand, Aug. 17.—(P)—Hugh Gladney Grant, the United States minister at this Far Eastern trouble spot, issued a statement today saying the report concerning his resignation, as announced in Washington, did not contain all the facts and that he was returning to the United States where he would make a further announcement.

Grant said his resignation was submitted last December along with the resignations of all other chiefs of diplomatic missions, as is customary at the advent of a new administration. He said it was not accepted until eight months later.

Grant said he regretted leaving Thailand "especially at this time of political tension in the Far East."

Secretary of State Cordell Hull announced on August 13 the resignation of Grant, explaining that it had been tendered some time ago and had no connection with current events.

Japanese Press Sees Encirclement Threats

TOKYO, Aug. 17.—(P)—Nichi Nichi, big Tokyo daily, declared today that United States-British-Russian talks in Moscow added to the encirclement threat against Japan, and that United States and British aid to Russia "will probably bring about undesirable effects upon Japanese-Soviet relations."

Both the United States and Britain, in collaboration with Russia, must be planning to bring pressure to bear on Germany and to check Japan's advance, the newspaper said.

Normal Tokyo-Indies Trade Believed Near

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(P)—New trade talks between Japan and The Netherlands East Indies are progressing so smoothly that resumption of normal trade relations is expected next week, a Domei (Japanese news agency) dispatch quoted by the British radio, said tonight.

The dispatch said that virtually all trade questions have been settled, but technical questions concerning the export of goods from The Netherlands East Indies to Japan are being discussed.

The British radio was heard here by CBS.

Following the lead of Britain and the United States, The Netherlands East Indies on July 28 stopped all trade and monetary transactions with the Japanese except by special approval of the government. All Japanese assets in the Dutch islands were frozen.

CONCERNING A MOVE OF IMPORTANCE TO INVESTORS

The new name on this letterhead marks another milestone in the growth of this house, originally established in Richmond, Virginia, in 1820, as Oatthmey & Company.

The adoption of a new name, for a business as old as ours, affords an excellent opportunity for a restatement of our guiding policy and point-of-view, which we feel is more important to you than mere size or modern and efficient physical facilities.

Of our basic policies the keystone is this: "The Customer's Interest Must Always Come First." The practical application of this policy has resulted in many tangible advantages and increased services for the clients who deal with us. For instance, commission charges have been reduced to a minimum permitted by the Exchanges of which we are members; interest rates have been abolished — even for Custodian Accounts. Savings effected by an increase in our business, by elimination of waste and duplication of facilities have always been, and will continue to be, passed on to our customers in the form of increased service.

Through our offices in 91 cities, covering the country from Coast to Coast, a new and superior type of over-the-counter service has been established, resulting in the finding of broader and better markets for unlisted securities.

Realizing that our business has grown largely because partners, managers and staff alike have approached each investor's problem as an individual one, we shall continue to place more and more emphasis on this feature of our service, and as a corollary, to develop further our already outstanding research department, which we honestly believe to be second to none. At your service, too, is a large staff of expertly trained specialists in every phase of the investment business, which includes commodities from the field to the finished product.

The stability of our house is reflected not merely in its capital of more than $6,000,000, but also in the fact that for a period of more than a century it has weathered successfully every storm. Our strength as a national organization stems from our standing in each community which we serve.

As Manager in this city, I offer you the experience and facilities of our entire organization, plus my own knowledge of local requirements and conditions. Please consider this a most cordial invitation to visit our office, where you will find me and my staff ready to assist you with your investment problems to the extent, and only to the extent, you desire.

Sincerely yours,

New Farm Progress

A few years ago the government took Tap Bennett, an unusually fine county agent at Griffin, and put him in charge of the Pine Mountain Valley Resettlement project.

Tap went to work and the "settlers" followed him.

An even fewer years ago Cason Callaway, well-known Georgian, began to build the soil and put into operation a large farm not many miles from the Valley. He made available to all county and home demonstration agents, to all agricultural college men, to all organizations of farmers, the benefits of his work and experiments.

Farmer Callaway grew no corn or cotton, concentrated on new cash crops within the reach of the average farm.

Both made progress.

Pine Mountain Valley changed from a disorganized group of persons newly off relief, to men and women interested in farming. They began to produce good milk, good eggs, good poultry and other products and put them on the market. The demand continues to grow.

Farmer Callaway has inspired hundreds to better and more diversified farming.

Because of the work of these two men, Harris county agriculture is developing more rapidly than anyone believed possible a few years ago. A new cannery has opened at Pine Mountain Valley which employs about 450 persons and has a pay roll of about $7,000 per month. The TVA is investigating the possibility of putting one of its large freezing units, capable of freezing two tons of fruits and vegetables and meats per day, in Harris county. The Callaway farm and the progress at Pine Mountain Valley attracted the TVA to Harris county. If the TVA unit is leased and operated it will mean more income and more work.

All of it goes to show what farming—based on intelligent use of modern agricultural knowledge and methods—will do.

Stand aside, folks, and let the returned foreign correspondent down the gangplank. He must write a book before he explodes.

According to statistics, old and new, it takes nine tailors to make a man, and 10 sheep to clothe a United States soldier.

If Sanity Remains

By every possible analysis, the present policy of the Japanese appears only as the policy of blind, foolhardy men who care nothing if they lead their nation to disaster. For a nation situated as is Japan today to challenge the might of Britain, of the Dutch East Indies and of the United States is to plan for national suicide. Yet this, apparently, is exactly what Tokyo is doing.

Latest reports affirm that the Japanese Army is planning to place 180,000 troops in French Indo-China, along the borders of Thailand. That these troops will attempt to invade that country and thus enter into conflict with British forces now in Burma and British Malaya is a foregone conclusion.

Yet, if they do that, it will be necessary for the three free powers vitally concerned with the future of the Pacific areas of the east, to meet force with force, to answer the Japanese armed challenge with their own armed strength.

To imagine that Japan can successfully fight the combined strength in the Pacific, of Britain, the United States and the free Dutch, is to imagine the impossible. The United States Pacific fleet alone could undoubtedly smash Japan's naval power within a few months after the start of conflict. Japan herself is tragically vulnerable to air attack. With a navy out of commission she would be unable to maintain her lines of supply to her armies fighting on foreign soil.

For four years Japan has striven, unsuccessfully, to defeat China, a nation weak in armament, pitifully poor in economic strength, strong only in the determination to fight until the invader is driven out.

If Japan launches the long threatened attack to the south of her island empire, as now appears inevitable, it will be impossible for the United States to maintain even the technical semblance of neutrality. To do so would be to surrender the Philippines and our bases in the east, supinely and without a struggle. Which is unthinkable.

For Japan to take on new enemies, to challenge the might of the United States, at this time, can be interpreted only as suicidal.

The only interpretation possible on Japanese policy is that the militaristic ruling powers of that country, desperate because of their failure in China, are planning to commit national harikiri, to drag their country down to death in order to cover their own failure and to "save face" before impending defeat.

They say the 200-inch telescope will bring the moon to within 25 miles of the earth. From there it can easily be picked up with a $2 pair of opera glasses.

Thanks to the Red Cross

"I never used it before, but I'm mighty glad I remembered how." Those words came the other day from a 16-year-old Atlanta boy, Everett Goodwin, as he told how he applied artificial respiration to revive his "kid" brother, Louie, two years old, after he had dragged the younger boy, unconscious, from Utoy creek. Those words—and the deed—were a tribute not only to Everett's quick thinking, but also to the Red Cross.

For Everett disclosed, in relating further details of the rescue of his brother, that he had learned the technique of administering artificial respiration in a Junior Red Cross life-saving course two years ago. It is safe to assume that Everett did not think, at the time he took that course, that it would ever come in handy—that it would do him any good from a practical standpoint. And yet the lessons he learned in that course two years ago enabled him to save the life of his baby brother.

Here is concrete evidence of the worth of the Red Cross, as it goes about its routine work of teaching boys and girls, men and women, how to take care of themselves and others when the "moment" comes. True, this organization breaks into the headlines mainly with "big" news, such as great fires, floods, cyclones, earthquakes, etc. And most persons are inclined to think of the organization in those larger terms.

It is well to consider that organization in the smaller terms, the day-by-day efforts it makes to the cause of saving human life. For somewhere, every day, the story of Everett Goodwin and his rescue is being repeated—thanks to the Red Cross.

Old-timers, who could pick a ripe melon unerringly in a strange patch at midnight, left children who can't spot one in four in a well-lighted grocery.

The Fuehrer's trouble with his Russian schedule brings to mind the time table on the old Erie line when the fare from New York to Buffalo was $18, or a dollar a day.

Duplex Wrath

A telephone call has reminded us that the American fiber remains strong. A gentleman called to ask for information as to how he could rid himself of a situation which was destroying his independence as a citizen.

He lived, he said, in a duplex. His neighbor in the other half, he said, insisted on parking his automobile in the driveway. What infuriated him was, he said, that his neighbor refused to refrain from blocking the driveway but told him that any time he wished to go out, he could ask and the car would be moved.

"I can't go through life having to ask someone else if he will move his car so I can go out," he said. "What are my rights?"

We sympathize with the gentleman. He did not give his name or the location of his duplex. We rejoice in him because he shows that, come what may in the way of large problems, the American is going to fight for all his small rights and liberties. We hope he and his neighbor may adjust it amicably. A man ought not to have to ask for the right to drive his car out of his own driveway.

As red seems hardly adequate to depict the nation's fiscal plight, we understand the whole thing goes shortly into full technicolor.

Let's think the thing through. With trade cut off with Japan, what are we going to do for silk shirts during the inflation?

Georgia Editors Say:

COSTLY ECONOMY.

(From The Albany Herald.)

Chickens have a disconcerting habit of coming home to roost. Lending point to the old adage is a story that's being told in Washington of how some of the big oil companies outsmarted them.

Back in pre-war days, the oil firms in question owned great fleets of tankers. In order to escape having to pay United States seaman's wages, they placed these tankers under French, Norwegian and other registry. By so doing, they were enabled to pay the lower wage scales for seamen of those countries.

But, came the war and what happened? The American tankers that were under foreign registry were simply confiscated by foreign governments. If those tankers had been of American registry the Nazi-dominated nations would not have dared seize them. So the oil companies saved a few thousand dollars in wages and lost their ships—to say nothing of all the profitable business these tankers could now be doing.

WASHINGTON PARADE

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.

PSYCHOLOGICAL FORCES PLAYED WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Too much emphasis cannot be given to the psychological forces brought into play by the dramatic revelation of President Roosevelt's historic meeting with Prime Minister Churchill on the high seas.

Entirely aside from the eight-point declaration of principles proclaimed by the President and the prime minister, the mere meeting of the heads of the two great English-speaking nations—the two great naval powers which together command not only the seas, but a vast part of the world's material resources—must sink deep into the minds of people everywhere. And not the least in Nazi-dominated areas of Europe.

Despite Axis efforts to minimize its importance, the meeting under such spectacular circumstances of the heads of the world's two greatest democracies is calculated to have a profound effect no less in the Hitler-conquered countries of Europe than in Russia, and Japan, where governments are battling against German aggression, and where government leaders are now debating whether to enter the war actively on the Axis side.

Slows down the Japanese Already, in fact, there are evidences of the Roosevelt-Churchill conference having repercussions in Tokyo which may slow down war moves of the Japanese militaristic party. Cable dispatches from the Land of the Rising Sun have quoted foreign office sources as saying the "confusion and chaos that have enveloped the Soviet front" makes it "necessary to make a reassessment of the war situation." Beneath the surface diplomatic observers see the influence of British-American collaboration, as strongly implied in the President's action.

Mr. Roosevelt, with his flair for the dramatic, has again proven himself a master psychologist in the arrangement of the Atlantic conference. It remains for most of the details of the Churchill meeting to be revealed by him, but he is generally presumed to have conceived the idea.

Both he and the prime minister have an extraordinary sense of the dramatic, and a highly responsive feeling for the moods of men. Hence, both have a remarkable talent in dealing with popular psychology, not the least important factor of which is timing.

The timing of the Atlantic meeting seems to have been perfect from the standpoint of all practical considerations. Russia was meeting the ordeal of a new German onslaught, which, if successful, would probably result in the capture of Moscow—perhaps the complete disintegration of Soviet resistance. Japan, urged on by Hitler, was moving toward the Dutch East Indies and the British colonial lifeline in the Pacific. France was announcing the final decision for collaboration with the German order of things. And in addition, Hitler, confident on the success of his Russian invasion, was on the verge of launching a peace offensive.

The psychological effect of the Atlantic conference and the declaration of principles that grew out of it was to arrest these forces momentarily, at least, on the one hand, and to inspire new resistance by the Russians and French, on the other.

DRAMATIC QUALITY OF THE MEETING

It is certain also that the dramatic quality of the meeting will have an awe-inspiring effect in the Axis countries themselves. The implications of it all, with the military and naval heads of the two powers surrounding the President and prime minister as they met, cannot be suppressed by the most rigid censorship Hitler is able to conceive. The British have already taken steps to exploit the setting fully by ordering some 80 broadcasts of the announcement in a dozen different languages.

To appreciate the possible influence of the meeting on popular moods throughout the world, it is only necessary to recall the effect on mass psychology of some of the past conferences between Hitler and his satellite Mussolini at Brenner pass.

For sheer drama and psychological effect, the President and the prime minister have outdone Hitler and Mussolini a hundredfold, even though the meeting has been somewhat aply described as "the war's worst-kept secret." Whatever risks were involved in the prize target offered for Germany submarines and bombers have been more than compensated for by the apparent success of the enterprise.

It will be left for future events to give the proper historical appraisal of the importance of the meeting, but most observers are agreed that the potentialities embrace the possibility of it marking a definite turning point in the ultimate outcome of the war.

Men, Not Words, Win Battles

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—It is the gigantic casualty lists, exceeding those of any campaign of the same length in all history, which give us the most impressive lesson of the Russo-German war, and promise that the Nazi army will never be so formidable again.

Written in blood for all to see, hopefully, this lesson will be taken to heart by our arm chair theorists, emotionalists, and propagandists who think wars can be won by exploding bombs charged only with words.

These include the pseudo military experts who had it straight from the horse's mouth that the German army won the battles of Flanders and France with 150,000 men when actually it utilized 2,000,000; their followers who think that with enough armor divisions it is only a case of with no body in your tanks suffering more than a skin bruise, of running circles around enemy army groups and taking them prisoners as a collier dog herds sheep; and those stick-in-the-muds, living back in the first World War, or before that, who insist the value of arm divisions is fantastically overestimated.

Summed up, the recognized reasons for German military successes from Poland through Norway and France to the Balkans were in training, organization, timing, co-ordination, aiming at the right proportion of all arms for modern needs, and centralizing air and mechanized forces.

Killing Power and Endurance

The lesson from Russia, written in blood, is that wars are still won by superior killing power and the will to endure killing. It is in the practical admission from German sources of the huge German casualties. Every arm has been useful. Neither side has had enough of any arm or enough soldiers to meet the fierce demands.

The 280,000 wounded Germans reported by the German radio to have been brought in from the central front alone were not the victims of warplanes and tanks alone. The planes bring back no dead, nor could they bring all the wounded.

Men have had lines and patterns of machinegun bullets bored in their chests. They have been shot down by sniping rifles. They have had their arms and legs blown off and they have been disemboweled by shells from guns and mortars more often than by bombs. The stench of the dead in mangled tanks in the blazing heat is in the nostrils of prostrate survivors maddened with thirst, as they wait for ambulances.

This is the ordeal the German army is enduring in the terrific campaign of killing. In tank and plane battles the gauge is the same. The account is written on the battle ledger not in black ink favor of one side or the other, but against the side which has the most red in dead and wounded.

Hitler Must Keep Going

Adolf Hitler is lashed to his task by ropes dripping red. In fanatic determination he must keep on driving his soldiers into the slaughter. Although he gets Moscow, Leningrad and Odessa this week and reaches the Urals and the Caucasus next week, there is no wiping out the blood losses his Army has suffered.

And these have been inflicted by the Russian army which was generally agreed to be quite inferior in skill if not in numbers. Map students, especially, thought the only hope of the Russian army was in masterly retreat; in remaining intact for delaying action as the German army extended its advance and communications.

But this was like reverting to Lee's skillful retreat from Gettysburg with a small army and the horse and foot of that day from Meade's army which had been fought to a standstill of dumb fatigue. The withdrawal of a huge modern army and keeping it together with all its trains over limited roads is another matter.

The Russians did fall back to stronger ground beyond Russian Poland. There they grappled with better trained, generalized and coordinated enemy. They grappled with all the arms they had, grappled with the do or die of the struggle in the "bloody angle" of Gettysburg or the Ypres salient.

They may have been outkilled by the Germans, but they have killed a host of Germans in a corrective lesson for anyone who thinks modern war is a joy ride in tanks or an infantry truck, and for the Cassandra who thinks that the German is a miracle army which cannot be licked by a more skillful and determined army equally well directed. The strongest armies get fought out. After such a bloodbath and all that is to come, the Nazi army should have passed its peak of vigor and morale.

Word Stories

By W. Worthington Wells

In Dale Carnegie's textbook on Public Speaking he quotes Orison S. Marden. "There is no need to tell an experienced man of the world what books you have read, with whom you have been in the habit of associating, or what your degree of culture is. He can learn all these things from your speech. 'Thy conversation betrayeth thee.' Every sentence you utter betrays its source. He can tell whether your speech is impoverished or vulgarized by association with the ignorant and the vulgar; and refined by companionship with the well-bred and educated." The following words are frequently mispronounced. Go over them carefully and practice pronouncing them with the accent on the capitalized syllable:

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

The opinions expressed by Mr. Pegler in this column are his own and do not necessarily represent the opinion of The Atlanta Constitution.

Name NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—

Calling Appearing before the banking committee of the house of representatives the other day, Leon Henderson, the price administrator, announced that he had no faith in the Dies committee, which is a body of the United States congress, elected by the people and selected by the lower house to investigate treason, sabotage and conspiracy against the American republic in the interests of foreign dictators, including Josef Stalin. The Dies committee had just released, by way of a speech delivered by the chairman, Martin Dies, on the floor of congress, some interesting information concerning one Tom Tippet, assistant chief of rents in Mr. Henderson's department, a very influential position, especially if it be held by a man with a sympathy for Communists and Communism.

Mr. Dies said Mr. Tippet had participated in a trades union conference called by Earl Browder, the chief of the Communist party in the United States who is now in prison for false swearing in his application for an American passport. As to Mr. Tippet's politics, I have more information than that contained in Mr. Dies' reference on the floor of the house, but I will make the point that if the same man had participated in a similar conference called by Fritz Kuhn, of the anti-American Nazi Bund, Mr. Henderson and Harold Ickes, who undoubtedly would have denounced him as a Nazi and Fifth Columnist and not only would have canned him, but would have turned the department inside out to discover who ever let him in, and heave that scoundrel out, too.

But the point should be made regarding Mr. Henderson that his opinion of Martin Dies is not important. He holds no mandate from anybody but only an appointment from an administration which is notoriously sympathetic with Communists, hides them away in many departments and furiously resents any attempt to turn them out.

What does matter is the evidence which the Dies committee has turned up against hundreds of individuals who are covered up in various bureaus in the guise of liberals or, at worst, socialists, but with the Communists and do their dirty work in the American government and yell "Red-baiter" when exposed.

Mr. Henderson's attitude illustrates the arrogance of the appointed appointee under the Roosevelt presidency. After all, who is Henderson and what? He is a statistician or glorified bookkeeper who was hired in the early days of the New Deal to do tricks with figures and, being a good personal press agent with contacts among the New Deal clique of reporters and professional pipe-line gossipists and a fair share of the left side of the street, he has crowded himself into a position of prominence. Mr. Henderson is called an economist, but an accountant with a certain degree of gall can get by as an economist in the New Deal if he happens to work the left side of the street and interpret his figures and the conclusions drawn therefrom in the direction of socialism or worse. You can hire an economist or take one down off the shelves of any college library to tell you anything you want to believe and the profession, if it be, is no more reputable than that of the alienists who used to go into famous criminal trials, until the courts caught up with them, and testify expertly and scientifically and for pay that the defendant was both a gibbering imbecile and an intellectual giant, an irresponsible victim of unpredictable brain-waves and a crafty killer with an acute sense of right and wrong.

No Weight Whatever

Mr. Henderson's opinion of Martin Dies and the Dies committee is of no weight whatever, except as emphasizing again the sullen defensive attitude of the New Deal under the relentless inquiry which the committee has pursued. But the committee's opinion of him and of appointees serving in his and other departments of the government is extremely important, for this committee has had to fight every department of the government and the FBI to expose the Trojan horseman of many individuals.

Henderson's timing is significant, too, for the turn of military events undoubtedly will be exploited by the Communists and their fellow travelers to pack even Stalinists into the office of the United States government on the assumption that public opinion now will be less wary than when the Communists were conducting all-out sabotage of the American national defense through strikes by their captive millions in the CIO.

The Dies committee has been so dogged and so useful that it has incurred the fierce hatred of the whole administration and desperate efforts will be made, of which Henderson's remarks are an example, to put it out of action when its term expires next spring, so that its files may be seized and the evidence destroyed.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

"ACCORDING TO PLAN" I came down to the office Sunday morning to peer in at the Associated Press report.

The war news was a bit dull. Germany announced it was proceeding "according to plan." Russia's communique was not much more specific.

One thing seems sure. There is a slaughtering going on. Deaths and casualties in this war with the Soviet already exceed those of all the other brief wars fought in Germany's smashing drive for world dominion. The Germans have lost many men and the Russian losses must have been staggering. They are mounting day by day.

There was a brief report not long ago of a cavalry charge by the Russians. It would be interesting to know how many escaped death in that charge. The very thought of a cavalry charge against machine guns and artillery gives one the shudders. Cavalry has no chance against the modern machine gun. Its function as a flanking force may exist, although even that is limited.

It is reasonable to assume that few of those making that charge were alive when it was done.

In Washington the intelligence still believes Germany will be able to take Leningrad and perhaps Moscow, but hopes for some miracle such as the Russians showed in the first two weeks when they were able to hold up the first big attempt to break through. The heavy Russian rains are a month away. Rain will slow up, but will not halt, the mechanized forces. The winter will not come to the Southern plains until a month after it has come in the north. The Germans have time enough to take the Ukraine and time enough to capture Leningrad and Moscow.

WAR WEARINESS

Soldiers who fought in the first World which stops an army is the terrible weariness which comes after men have been in the lines for many consecutive days.

It would seem that the German attack would collapse from sheer weariness. The record of the past shows that Germany required some months to get ready after Poland. There was not enough push left to take England after Dunkirk when England was helpless and practically unarmed. After each thrust in the past Germany has taken time to rest and prepare.

She turned against Russia without any intervening period of rest. The attack has been relentless and it has been going on day and night. Germany cannot halt and wait for a few weeks for her army to catch its breath, for supplies to be brought up and distributed.

All this must be done during combat. The physical strain grows greater. If the Germans can keep up their relentless attack against Russia and win through to Moscow, it will be the greatest military feat the world has seen.

The mechanized army which slashed through Holland, Belgium and France never once lacked for gasoline or oil. The world had never seen a source of supply such as maintained contact and supplied that army.

Apparently it is doing the same sort of job in Russia. But one cannot help but believe that if Russia can hold them off, even at the cost of thousands of her men, even the German army must crack and be forced to halt for a rest. They are not supermen, even though they are the best-trained and best-conditioned army in the world.

THE ARSENAL

Meanwhile, few of us realize to what an extent this country is the arsenal of democracy. It is keeping England from starving. It is supplying England with at least half her supply of planes and will increase that percentage by January 1. It now is taking on the task of supplying Russia with materials and, before winter is done, with food.

It is obvious that England is short in many things. Otherwise Harry Hopkins would not have flown to England and Lord Beaverbrook would not now be in this country seeking to expedite "lend-lease" deliveries.

England must hold up some of her plans, notably the long-delayed African campaign, until she knows what and how much she can get from this country in the way of tanks, planes and food.

Everywhere one encounters plants turning out materials and food for England. Last week I was surprised to find a newly-opened cannery at Pine Mountain Valley packing 800 tons of peaches for the government, most or all of which will go to England. Other packing plants in the state are doing the same thing. When Georgia tomatoes and beans come in they, too, will be canned with England getting large amounts of them. The same thing is going on in all the states of the Union. The heaviest demand now is for dairy products, for milk, for cheese, and butter.

Slowly but surely our economy is being geared to feed a large part of the world, to arm it, to supply it.

The United States has kept England in the war. The United States diplomacy has kept Japan out of the war; has prevented the Vichy government from turning over her navy to Germany. The United States has done all these things and will do more. Germany merely growls. The truth is Germany will take almost anything so long as this country does not come into the war. That is why Mr. Roosevelt thinks we are no nearer to a shooting war than we were before the historic meeting in the Atlantic.

It Is Too Late To Fatten the Mules When the Spring Plowing Begins

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

The newspapers have never told the story of one British blunder. It began too long ago to be classified as news.

Shirer tells about in his "Berlin Diary," and lovers of humanity should read it for the good of their souls. It will be useful, also, when people begin to discuss the purposes of peace.

It came about this way. The conquest of the Low Countries was finished; British forces were backing into the pocket at Dunkirk; France was broken and doomed; and Shirer had been permitted to approach the fast-moving front.

He saw groups of English prisoners—dirty, shocked and utterly weary men—and was permitted to interview them. What they said doesn't matter here; the significant part is what Shirer saw.

Every now and then a representative of a credit agency pays me a call—to ask about somebody who may or may not have given my name as a reference.

That kind of questioning rather puts a fellow up a tree.

The questioner wants to know about John Smith's habits, his income, whether or not his job is assured, whether he is knee-deep in debt—and all that.

How can I answer such questions?

I like John Smith, who lives a block or so away. And his wife is a mighty nice person. And his two youngsters, though inclined to be hell-raisers on occasion, are swell kids. He has a nice dog, too. A wire-haired terrier who is most friendly and no more afflicted with fleas than most dogs.

But, after all, what the devil do I know about John Smith? I know I like him and his wife and his kids and his dog—though I see them seldom.

John Smith may be a villain in disguise. Under that mask of a smile he may be a potential murderer. He may be short in his accounts by $3,765.25, but if the auditors haven't discovered it, how should I know? He may be planning to skip to Honduras.

But he's a darn nice chap. I see him only every now and then, but he looks like a pretty clean sort of fellow.

I Don't Know

So what can I offer as to his character? Not a darn thing. I can say I never caught him stealing—except a pot in a poker game when he made me lie down with a full house against his one small pair.

I never heard of him poisoning his mother-in-law. Indeed, she seems rather hale and hearty. I never heard of his kicking his dog. He borrowed 50 cents from me once when his wife had taken everything away from him but his carfare. But he paid that back.

But what do I know about my good neighbor, John Smith? Not a damn thing.

So, of course, I tell the investigator he seems to be a fine chap, without blemish, except that he smokes a cigaret I detest. I say I'd lend him a thousand dollars any minute he needed it—and I had it. An unlikely contingency in the latter clause.

And just a few weeks later I read in the papers that he's been indicted for embezzlement, sequestration of funds, battery, accessory after the fact and perhaps arson and seven instances of bigamy.

Well, I'd told all I knew. I am shocked, to say the least. I'd return those three books I'd borrowed from him if I knew where to find him—which is baffling the experts.

But John Smith was a darn nice chap and good company. I'll stick to that.

Barbers and Onions.

City of Waterloo, Neb., has an ordinance forbidding a barber to eat onions between 7 a. m. and 7 p. m.

If you ask me, I think it's unconstitutional. As a devotee of onions in the raw I'll join in taking it to the United States supreme court. Though I'll acquiesce in an ordinance requiring barbers who eat onions—or garlic—to wear gas masks or provide them for customers. That goes, too, for barbers who tune up for the day's toil by anointing themselves with seven holy oils, each smelling worse than the six others.

But what of the barber's side of this acrimonious contention? How about requiring customers to abstain from onions, cheap liquor and half-smoked cigars which they insist on relighting while submitting to a haircut?

But I find myself engaged in an argument with myself over the problem of employer and employee. Which is Mr. Pegler's field—and can he tell 'em!

It makes no vast difference to me. I shave myself—and get a haircut whenever some new acquaintance asks whether I'm a poet or a Hungarian gypsy violinist—and, if the latter—where is my fiddle?

Personally, I think long, curling, luxurious locks falling gracefully from the cranium and drooping over the shoulders like Buffalo Bill's, would be romantic.

The dandruff, I'll admit, might be tough on coat collars. But I don't think it would work in my case, unless I played hermit in the mountains for several years. The only place my hair gets enthusiastic about growth is at the back of my neck. I wish it would switch to my chest. I'm hoping to wear my new bathing trunks at the beach—if I ever get there.

Shed a Tear

You can always call up plenty of sentiment about old fire horses which pricked up their ears when an alarm came in and were rarin' to go before the last fireman could get his breeches on and slide down the brass pole.

Sentiment about an old fire engine—a piece of machinery—isn't so ordinary. But it popped up in Augusta recently. A town where you might expect it.

Story in the Chronicle—"The South's Oldest Newspaper," isn't quite clear to an outsider. But it seems that "Old Georgia," a steam fire engine of the good old days, had been sold down the river and landed somewhere in Montezuma. And Richard E. Allen, then mayor of Augusta, bought it back in 1935 and had it brought home. Story doesn't say whether he paid for it personally or the city council made an appropriation.

But recently, the Chronicle says, the current mayor ordered it sold for junk. Which it was.

Which irked the former mayor, Mr. Allen, who went around town and raised a hundred bucks to redeem the grand old fire fighter. It is now in an automobile dealer's show window and the problem is where to put it. But I'm pretty sure Dick Allen will work that out.

Shriner Group Will Meet Here

Between 2,500 and 5,000 Shriner from eight southeastern states will come to Atlanta for the Southeastern Shrine Association meeting September 12 and 13. W. C. Harris announced yesterday.

Yaarab will be the host temple.

Temples expected to send representatives include: Abba, Mobile; Alcazar, Montgomery; Al Chymia, Memphis; Alea, Savannah; Alhambra, Chattanooga; Al Menah, Nashville; Al Sibah, Macon; Egypt, Tampa; Hamasa, Meridian; Hejaz, Greenville; Jerusalem, New Orleans; Kerbelah, Knoxville; Mabi, Miami; Morocco, Jacksonville; Oasis, Charlotte; Omar, Charleston; Sudan, New Bern; N. Tag Sale To Aid Atlanta Hospice

Tags will be sold tomorrow to raise funds for the Atlanta Hospice, a non-profit, city mission for men at 329 Crew street, S. W., which shelters homeless men who otherwise might become public charges.

In urging Atlantans to buy the tags, Thomas Laven, director of the Hospice, said: "Every man who comes to us helps run the Hospice. For his bed, he gives a little care to a sick brother. For his food, he helps keep the place clean and in repair."

Money raised from the tag sale will be used to buy such necessities as soap, disinfectants, bed linens, etc., Laven added.

Talbot County Schools Will Open September 1

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. TALBOTTON, Ga., Aug. 17.—Talbot county schools will open for the 1941-42 session Monday, September 1, J. C. Watts, superintendent, announced today.

Courses in home economics, vocational training, and all commercial subjects will be offered in the senior high schools for the first time, Watts said. Special buildings to house these courses have been erected at both Woodland and Talbotton, and more than $2,000 has been expended on special equipment necessary.

It had been planned to ship the metal last week, but a drive by the 4-H clubs in the county nearly doubled the quantity in the local pile, so the shipment was postponed, Brewer declared.

PLANTING TURNIPS. Planted turnips last Wednesday, and it was a grand day for that very important job. We had a light rain on Tuesday night, enough to put a season in the ground, and it was cloudy and cool Wednesday, the temperature not more than 80 at any time during the day.

But it was hot at that, as my friend Roy Davis will tell you. This business of fixing ground for a fall turnip patch is one that will bring out the sweat, even on a relatively cool day. You always want to plant your fall turnip patch in a place where something else has been grown in the spring and summer, which means at the very outset the job of clearing off the other crop. And I have never seen it fail that Bermuda roots will get into the very spot where you want to plant your fall turnips, not to mention plenty of other kinds of grass and weeds. It always means work—this business of planting a fall turnip patch.

And after you get the ground ready to plant, you have that always hot job of strewing your fertilizer. But I always enjoy it. I enjoy cleaning up the ground, plowing it, raking it, replowing it, and all that. And then after the seed are sown to scatter the rotted manure and leaves, and just stand there and imagine how it will look 10 days from now when the tender leaves are glistening in the early morning dew. And then six weeks from now when the whole place will be a green carpet of prospective potlikker. Man, man!

The lowly turnip is one of the grandest of all the vegetables. What would we do without turnip salad, potlikker, mashed turnips, and so forth? And I like them raw—I mean the turnips. I

MUSIC FOR MUSICIANS—These two pretty Atlanta girls, Charline Cochran (left) and Mary Drummond, play records of some of the hit dance tunes to which they will trip the light fantastic tomorrow night at the municipal auditorium at the benefit dance to buy much-needed instruments for the Fort McPherson Reception Center Band. A large crowd is expected to attend the dance to aid the musicians.

Schools May Open On September 8

Plans for opening Fulton county schools on Monday, September 8, County high school superintendent, announced yesterday.

"It is too early to decide whether or not the opening of schools should be deferred on account of the polio situation," he said. "This matter will be decided by September 1 and an announcement will be made in the newspapers if it is thought advisable to postpone the opening date."

County high school registration will take place September 3, 4 and 5, and meetings of teachers and principals will be held from September 2 through 5.

Savannah Leads Living Cost Rise

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(UP) Living costs in large cities continued to rise from mid-June to mid-July and now are almost 7 per cent higher than they were two years ago when the European war began, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday.

During the month living costs rose by 0.6 per cent bringing the rise since March to 4 per cent.

House furnishings and clothing showed the greatest advance, while food costs, which increased rapidly during the spring, slackened because of seasonally lower prices for fruits and vegetables.

Savannah (Ga.), with a 2 per cent general increase, showed the sharpest rise during the month. Other cities having substantial increases were: Birmingham, Ala., 1.3 per cent; Boston, 1.2; Pittsburgh and Chicago, 1 per cent; Houston, 0.9; Denver and Cleveland, 0.8, and Buffalo, 0.7 per cent.

WEEVL DAMAGE. HOMER, Ga., Aug. 17.—Heavy boll weevil damage to the cotton crop in Banks county is reported by farmers.

3 Religious Events Will Be Observed Here

Church Folk of All Denominations to Participate in Programs.

By DR. THOMAS M. ELLIOTT.

Atlanta churchfolk of all denominations are interested deeply in and making preparations for participation in the three important religious events scheduled to be observed here within the next few weeks. A school of religious education is announced by the Christian Council, September 15 to 19, and a standard training school for religious workers is announced by the Methodist Board of Education, September 21 to 26.

More than 300 of Atlanta's 350 churches are to take part in the third religious feature on October 5, when Christian believers in all parts of the world are to observe world-wide communion day. Many Atlanta churches will supplement the three special meetings named above by promoting a visitation campaign.

Dr. Ryland Knight, president of the Atlanta Christian Council, announces details in connection with the city-wide school for all religious teachers, workers and officers, to be held at the First-Baptist church, September 15 to 19. No fees will be assessed, said Dr. Knight, although offerings will be received.

Speakers Listed.

Speakers for the Christian Council school will be Dr. Paul H. Vieth, of Yale University, who will conduct a forum each afternoon and speak each evening; Dr. Edward D. Grant, of the Presbyterian committee on religious education, will teach a course in adult work; and Dr. Henry M. Johnson, of Emory University, will be the instructor in young people's work. The worker for elementary teachers is yet to be selected.

The Rev. W. S. Norton, chairman of faculty, courses of study and textbooks for the Methodist Standard Training School, stated that nine courses of study have been arranged for students in that school, which is to be held at St. Mark Methodist church, September 21 to 26. Six of the courses are for workers in children's and young people's divisions, and three courses are general.

Instructors in the training school will be Mrs. H. D. Guerrant, of Atlanta; Miss Elizabeth Jarrett, of Richmond; Mrs. F. F. Ballard, of Birmingham; the Rev. W. G. Henry Jr., of Clayton, Ga.; Miss Wynness Tate, of Anniston, and Dr. N. C. McPherson Jr., of Atlanta.

General Courses.

Instructors for the general courses will be Dr. H. B. Trimble, of Emory University, who will teach "Christian Evangelism"; Dr. W. P. King, of Nashville, who will teach "The Book of Revelation," and Dr. Ed. F. Cook, of Macon, who will teach "Toward a World Christian Community."

Christian believers throughout the entire world are expected to participate in the special program for October 5, which is to be known as world-wide communion day. In this ecumenical Christian movement at least 300 of Atlanta's churches will take part, it is said. Elaborate preparations are under way for the momentous event.

Christian believers of all denominations and on every continent are to engage in the solemn sacrament that shows forth the passion and death of Jesus Christ. Urgent appeal is made that every church in every land will forget denominational differences, nationalism, jealousies, hatreds, and war as they assemble around the table of the Lord, in whom there is no east or west or north or south.

Unity Affirmation.

Special emphasis is to be given the affirmation of unity of all Christian believers as they engage in the universal communion service. Substance of the affirmation of unity to be used is as follows:

"We are one in faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, the incarnate Word of God. We are one in allegiance to Him as Head of the church, and as King of Kings, and Lord of Lords. We are one in acknowledging that this allegiance takes precedence of any other allegiance that may make claims upon us.

"This unity does not consist in the agreement of our minds or the consent of our wills. It is founded in Jesus Christ himself, who lived, died, and rose again to bring us to the Father, and who through the Holy Spirit dwells in His church. We are one because we are the objects of the love and grace of God, and called by Him to witness in all the world to His glorious gospel.

"We desire to declare to all men everywhere our assurance that Christ is the one hope of unity for the world in face of the distractions and dissensions of the present time. We know that our witness is weakened by our divisions. Yet we are one in the fellowship of His Spirit. We pray that everywhere, in a world divided and perplexed, men may turn to Jesus Christ our Lord, who makes us one in spite of our divisions; that He may bind in one those who by many worldly claims are set at variance; and that the world may at last find peace and unity in Him; to whom be glory

Whisky-Laden Car Crashes in Chase

Chased several miles on Atlanta streets early yesterday, an automobile, loaded with contraband liquor, crashed into a telephone pole at Bishop street and North Side drive, Radio Patrolmen M. B. Hogue and Roy Etheridge reported. The patrolmen said they began chasing the car on Thursday street shortly after daybreak. When the car crashed, the driver, a white man, jumped out and escaped. The automobile contained 105 gallons of non-tax paid liquor, police said.

Ed Heusser Wins 20th Game as Cracker Split With Travelers

BY JACK TROY

Another Munich? W(ildlife) T(echnician) Anderson, of Macon, has launched still another personal attack on this writer in the name of Georgia conservation. In a few thousand ill-chosen words he again advances nothing of a beneficial nature. It's purely a personal tirade.

And then there is an amazing about-face. He invites us to dinner "to talk things over." He names the place and a possible procedure.

(I read "Mein Kampf" once. Hitler rapped the Russians in caustic sentences. And then he invited the Russians to a conference and there was a Russo-German agreement. Chamberlain also went to a Hitler conference, but I don't recall that Hitler wrote anything about the umbrella man).

At any rate, I am a bit leery of the Anderson peace. For, preceding his proposal, he wrote these lines:

"He (Troy) is a lovable fellow if you don't try to believe him—big in physique, awkward and uncertain in speech, indifferent to facts, bumbling, stumbling word-mixologist who trips himself up every time he opens his mouth, figuratively speaking, and where most people put only one foot in, he manages with his unique jiu jitsu to get both feet in every time."

Purely personal, and with utter disregard of aspects of the wildlife controversy which he provoked without apparent cause, Anderson continues in this fashion: "I say to Jack, 'Peace on you, and I am so mad in my face I feel like I can whip any man twice my heavy and two times my old.'"

He sounds like he is quoting Father Divine, and I do not have any doubts that he would be willing to recite "Peace, it's wonderful!" Certainly, by his own admission, after a few hundred words of meaningless mumbo-jumbo, he would like to smoke the pipe of peace.

Hark to his words: "I hereby challenge you and John Martin to eat a steak with me some evening and let's talk over matters and get together for the sake of wildlife."

I wish I had not read "Mein Kampf." But surely Macon's leading conservationist—to hear him tell it—wouldn't be angling for a second Munich, involving our state's wildlife affairs, would he?

State Deplores It These public wildlife discussions between W(ildlife) S(ports)men T(ourist) Anderson and the writer have been deplored by the Wildlife Division. They have revealed too many unpleasant things. Sportsmen have been enlightened as to the extremely careless manner in which their interests have not been looked after under political supervision.

I am sure that the Wildlife Division would have preferred Mr. Anderson had not launched the unprovoked attack, for since his first verbal salvo, a number of distressing things have happened.

First there was Potato creek and Etheridge mill pond. Pollution killed the fish in both. And in Sunday's outdoor section, there was this pertinent story on pollution—

"QUITMAN, Ga., Aug. 16—Big crowds recently flocked to the Withlacoochee river, where the water was thick with dead and disabled fish. The big fish edged in to the banks seeking fresh water and people waded in and caught them. Big fish and little fish died and floated downstream. Observers said it was due to pollution from industrial plants in Valdosta."

"Dan Holwell, secretary of the Quitman Production Credit Association, said that local sportsmen had volunteered to contribute money to employ an extra game warden during the closed season and that he was sure sportsmen would support any genuine effort on the part of the state for game and fish protection, but that the wholesale destruction of fish made it impossible to hope for law observance by fishermen, who were disgusted by such inconsistency."

Notice the part about people wading in and catching the fish and that part about "inconsistency?"

Well, the state recently made a case against young David Mangum, local youngster, because he jerked a large rainbow trout out of Lake Burton by the tail. The state is going to attempt to prosecute the youngster because he didn't catch it with a hook and line!

Inconsistency, indeed!

Worthy Goals I am going to be willing to drop these wildlife discussions, if and when: Georgia shares in the Pittman-Robertson aid-to-wildlife money; Georgia has a size and bag limit on fish; Georgia has a law against pollution; Georgia has a wildlife division out of politics.

We could have the Pittman-Robertson money, the size and bag limit, and the law against pollution today—if it weren't for an instrument known as a veto.

Most everybody wanted it EXCEPT the Governor. W(hole) T(ruth) Anderson says, "You are so blinded with prejudice that you are determined to handicap and destroy the state department if you can—to what end I do not know—that you make reckless and unwarranted charges against it, and when called you jump to some other charge equally baseless."

If Anderson means by prejudice that I am determined, as a hunter and fisherman, to see justice done in the name of the people who buy licenses, he is eminently correct. And when he speaks of being "called" and "jumping to some other charge equally baseless," he is simply writing in true Anderson style, with no regard for facts, truth or logic.

He speaks of bumbling and stumbling. Well, I didn't begin this discussion with the idea of getting personal, but that seems to be his best weapon.

And so I would like to ask Mr. Anderson, who is not taking the people's side in this discussion, what political objective he expects to gain by continued personal attacks on me?

My lawyer friend in south Georgia says, "He is trying to stir up sentiment for Talmadge against Russell, whom he detests, and his political ambitions and prejudices are so evident as to be disgusting to the smallest child."

Accept—Under His Terms If there is anything to be gained for state wildlife by a dinner engagement with the eminent Mr. Anderson, I naturally am in favor of it. And since I have read "Mein Kampf," I accept under his terms, as follows:

"Of course, at our steak dinner we may be afraid to drink or eat because of the possibility of poisoned food or drink, but instead of merely touching our glasses as guarantee of good faith, we'll do like our forefathers did when the practice was inaugurated—as we raise our glasses in a 'here's how'—we'll pour

Teagle, Camp Take Georgia Tennis Titles

Jack Beats Crawford, 6-3, 6-2; Florence Upsets Jane Metcalf.

By BERT PRATHER.

Florence Camp and Jack Teagle, a pair of steady stroking performers, carried off top honors in the annual state tennis tournament Sunday afternoon at the Northside Tennis Club by whipping Mary Jane Metcalf and Hank Crawford in the finals of the women's and men's singles, respectively.

Teagle pounded out a workmanlike 6-3, 6-2 decision over Crawford, while Miss Camp upset Mary Jane Metcalf, a U. C. L. A. student who hails from Denver, Col., 2-6, 6-2, 6-1.

The victories were the first major titles ever won by either Miss Camp or Teagle and came only after several fine out-of-state entrants were bumped out of the way.

Teagle won his way into the final round by whipping Glenn Hewitt, the hard-hitting Texan from Houston, in a morning semi-final match, 7-5, 1-6, 6-3. Hank Crawford ousted Jack Bushman, of Columbus, Ga., in the other men's morning semi-final match, 7-5.

SHARES IN DOUBLES. In addition to winning the singles crown, Miss Camp also grabbed a share of the mixed doubles crown when she teamed with Don Floyd to down Elta Coyn and Nat Collins, 6-4, 6-2.

Teagle teamed with Coyn and Collins entered this match immediately after they trounced Ann Allen and J. T. Chambers, 8-6, 2-6, 6-4 in a torrid semi-final struggle.

The junior singles championship was the only title which completely eluded local talent. The crown went to Frank Willett, a tireless youngster from Anniston, Ala. Frank, a former National boys' singles titleholder and present Tennessee junior champ, took Carl Maddox, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4, in a hotly contested match. Willett also came in second in the men's doubles diadems by teaming with Don Buffington, Atlanta and Duke University star, to register a straight-set, 6-4, 7-5 victory over Hank Crawford and Cortez Suttles.

Beat Bushmans Buffington and Willett slipped into the championship round by whipping Jack Bushman and his brother, Bob, 6-8, 6-1, 6-1, in a morning match. Suttles and Crawford went into the finals by triumphing over Macon Courts and Red Enloe, 3-6, 10-8, 7-5, in a thrilling struggle. This latter match was the prettiest of the tournament. Courts and Enloe won the first set and had double match point in the second, only to lose to the determined 1940 state champs.

In the third set, Courts and Enloe again got off to a fine start, piling up a 5-2 lead, but a blistering attack on the part of Crawford and Suttles soon erased it. The latter pair won five games in a row. This match took its toll, however, as they fell rather easily in the finals to the young Atlanta-Anniston combination.

In the other morning match, Willett bumped Ivey Wilson, of St. Petersburg, Fla., 7-5, 6-4, to win his place in the championship round.

Young Girl Breaks 800-Meter Record HIGH POINT, N. C., Aug. 17.—(P)—Gallant little Nancy Merki, of Portland, Ore., as game a child as ever stuck a toe in the water, put a record-breaking finish to the A. A. U. national women's swimming championship today, but the team honors went to the unheralded Riviera club, of Indianapolis.

Fourteen-year-old Nancy, darling of the crowd that spilled over City Lake's 3,000-seat aquatic stadium, broke the monotony of the championship third day of the championships by setting a new American mark of 11 minutes, 16 seconds flat for the 800-meters.

The Hoosiers went into today's three events leading the Portland outfit, the Multnomah club, by 34 points to 20, and when it was all over they led the field with 43 points.

Portland finished second with 31, nosing out the Women's Swimming Association, of New York City, which had climbed temporarily into second place with 29 points as its relay team retained its 300-meter medley honors.

Golf Tourney Set At Warm Springs WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Aug. 17.—The annual Warm Springs invitation golf tournament will be held August 30 and 31 and September 1.

Qualifying will be allowed any time between August 25 and August 30. Sixteen will be qualified for the championship, with other flights of eight.

Pro Jim Hackney will be in charge. The entry fee is $3.

Eduardo Blasi Wins Argentine Golf Title BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 17.—(P)—Eduardo Blasi, who recently returned from a tour of the United States, captured the Argentine professional golf championship today by defeating Emilio Serra, 2 and 1, in the 36-hole final match over the Saenz Pena links.

The 30-year-old Blasi, who finished the morning round 2 up, won the title for the first time by sinking a tricky 35-foot putt for a birdie 2 on the 17th hole.

Blasi gave credit for his victory to "improved greens" play as a result of experience against great North American players.

Clarkdale Beats Central; Fulton Whips Post Office

Moreland, McTyre Turn in Six-Hitters for Two Undefeated Teams in Amateur Baseball Meet.

By JOHNNY BRADBERRY.

Fulton Bag and Clarkdale yesterday climbed to the top of the heap in the third annual Atlanta Amateur Baseball Federation tournament with two tight victories over Post Office and Central Cafe at Ponce de Leon park.

The tourney's largest crowd, almost 1,500 people, saw three beautifully played ball games at the Cracker park, the first two between previously undefeated teams.

Fulton Bag remained unbeaten behind the sterling six-hit pitching of Lefty Moreland who blanked Post Office, 2 to 0. Clarkdale's popular favorites rallied for two runs in the eighth inning to defeat highly-regarded Central Cafe, 2-1, to tie Fulton at the top of the standings with three victories and no defeats.

Oakland City Wins The third game at Ponce de Leon saw Oakland City's defending champions knock White Provision from the meet, 4 to 2.

Two games at Clarkdale ran true to form as Lawson General Hospital, with Lefty Dick Douthat pitching six innings, defeat Villa Rica, 7 to 2, and Southern Railway outscored Marietta, 10 to 7, with Joe Gerson getting four hits in the trips to the plate.

Three games will be played today to catch the tournament draw up to the quarter finals. Fans are already talking about the clash between the two undefeated leaders, Fulton and Clarkdale, which will be played Tuesday night as the feature of a double-header at Ponce de Leon park.

Nine teams remain in the meet but another defeat will eliminate any of them but the two pacesetters.

Semi-finals will be played Wednesday and finals Thursday night.

REAL THRILLER The Central Cafe-Clarkdale game was a real thriller, one which would justify to a Hollywood director.

Lefty Moreland, ex-Bufford star, and H. C. McTyre faced each other on the mound in a tight duel. Central Cafe scored in the fourth inning on George Sloan's single, a sacrifice, and Melton's single.

Nix held the lead until the last of the eighth when Clarkdale went to war. J. Moon walked to start it. The pitcher then struck out Nix. Then Harris singled, bringing J. Moon with the tying run. The pitcher was out at the plate on O. Moon's fielder's choice but Wallace dropped a perfect bunt down the third base line, scoring Harris, and beating it out for a single.

Here, Lefty Bennett relieved Nix and struck out the next two batters to retire the side.

McTyre allowed only six hits, Nix eight. G. Sloan turned in a neat job of shortstopping for the losers.

Today's schedule: At Ponce de Leon park (Umpires, Moon and Whitte), 3:30, Georgia Power vs. Whittier; 4:30, winner Georgia Power vs. Fulton Bag; 5:30, Fulton Bag vs. Post Office; 6:30, Fulton Bag vs. Central Cafe; 7:30, Fulton Bag vs. Southern Railway; 8:30, Fulton Bag vs. Oakland City; 9:30, Fulton Bag vs. Whittier Mills; 10:30, Fulton Bag vs. White Provision; 11:30, Fulton Bag vs. Marietta; 12:30, Fulton Bag vs. Villa Rica; 1:30, Fulton Bag vs. X.W.O. Pierce; 2:30, Fulton Bag vs. X.G. General; 3:30, Fulton Bag vs. X.G. Comm; 4:30, Fulton Bag vs. X.G. Arrow; 5:30, Fulton Bag vs. X.G. Denotes team eliminated.

Brown Awning Company in Its Own Plant in Lakewood Heights

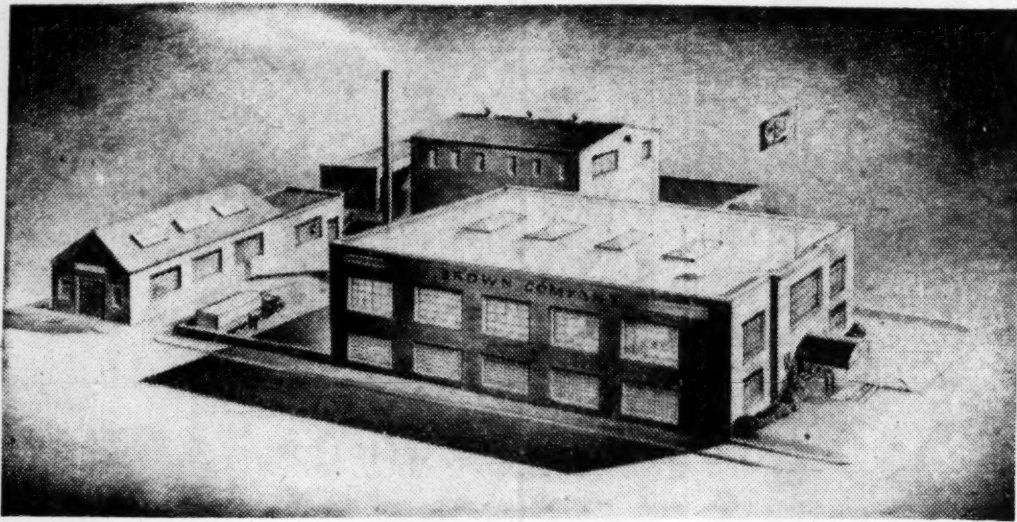

Well Equipped In New Location On Margaret St.

Firm Established in '26; Operates Own Striping Plant.

By PRESS HUDDLESTON.
The Brown Awning Company, old and well-established retail and wholesale manufacturers, has moved into its own modern and commodious new building, built especially for it, at 228 Margaret street, Lakewood Heights.

The structure and its furnishings and working facilities are perhaps the most complete of any similar institution in the southeast. Three new buildings have been erected, which give to the company 20,000 square feet of space, and includes an awning striping plant, a manufacturing plant, with commodious display rooms, and convenient and splendidly equipped office quarters.

The building is equipped with a sprinkler system, has fluorescent lighting, with large glass windows so designed as to eliminate sun glare. The company's products include "Peacock" awning and Venetian blinds, window shades, canopies, "Protex-a-Lode" waterproof tarpaulins, other canvas goods, and "Brown's Best-

Bill" tents for gospel, show, camping and display purposes.

Large parking space on street level is provided for customers, and the showrooms provide a complete and splendid display of the various products of the company.

The Brown Awning Company was established in 1926. For a long time its quarters were at 291 Ivy street, but larger and better quarters were needed to care for the steadily expanding business. L. S. Brown and his son, Jos. L. Brown, are gratified at the excellent patronage they are receiving, not only in this immediate area, but from all over the southeast, and in their new location are able and pleased to pledge even greater and better service for the future.

The company operates its own striping plant, being one of two firms in the southeast who do this. This enables the concern to handle the entire manufacturing job and thereby control the quality of its products. The firm's extensive equipment is considered among the best in the south.

Retailing its products in Atlanta, the Brown Awning Company also sells its merchandise throughout the southeast. L. D. Fayer is sales manager of the awning department, and H. F. Deleshaw and J. S. Gibson, salesmen, cover the territory.

New Method Of Supplying Wiping Cloths

Atlanta Industrial Service Co. Has Unique Rental Service.

Scores of plants in Atlanta have learned about, and are now using, the new method of supplying wiping cloths a service offered by the Atlanta Industrial Service Company, located at 603-605 Edgewood avenue.

This concern, while it has been in operation only a few months, has built up more than 500 accounts—patrons who find the convenience and the economy furnished by it as a service really worth while.

The plan of the company is to furnish wiping cloths to keep machinery of any type clean and shiny. It not only provides the cloths, but it delivers them in bundles as needed, picks up those previously used, and after thorough cleansing through a sanitation process, returns them, or leaves a new bundle. As a matter of fact, it is a rental service for wiping cloths for machinery, just as a service is provided in offices and other places for towels for wiping the hands.

Machine shops, service stations, garages, printing plants, or any other plants of similar nature where cleaning operations are necessary, find economy in using this unique service. There is no investment to be made. No towels or cloths to be bought. No boxes or burlap to be bought. Towels are rented at a low, money-saving price, and fireproof containers are furnished without charge.

Make Your Car A Three-in-One Automobile

Yancey Brothers Can Change It Into Uses for Several Purposes.

Here's a new wrinkle in the use of your automobile. It can be made to serve three useful purposes—a three-in-one proposition—if you will consult Yancey Brothers, at 110 Jackson street, N. E., about it.

One of the convenient arrangements installed by this concern is brought about by a clever rearrangement of any new or good used five or seven-passenger sedan. A car of this type can be converted into a New-System way. By that is meant they can equip your sedan so that it becomes a really fine ambulance—a car in which a reclining cot can be quickly installed, and any member of your family, or others, who might be in ill health, can recline and ride in ease, and yet enjoy the roadside scenery. This is done in this way:

Both doors on the right side are opened fully to make easy loading and props are installed to hold them open. The front seat is not altered, merely reinforced to make it self-supporting, and by using the New-System seat remover it can be quickly and easily removed from the car or replaced by one person without the use of tools. They furnish a driver's seat to slide in place of the sedan front seat. This clears the right side of car for a cot, still leaving room on rear seat for a doctor, nurse or friend. The floor is leveled and carpeted ready for the cot.

Yancey Brothers do not alter the body of your car. They just add invisible steel attachments to the rear seat for a doctor, nurse or friend. The floor is leveled and carpeted ready for the cot.

This change makes your car do three jobs, and do them economically, efficiently and conveniently. With it you have a combination delivery truck, a family car, and a private ambulance, if desired.

Yancey Brothers was established in 1912. The firm is composed of Newton M. Yancey and Karl V. Yancey. They are manufacturers of auto truck bodies, hearses and ambulances, and enjoy wide popularity as one of Atlanta's dependable and reliable business concerns.

WORD TO PARENTS—School will soon open again, and Gold Shield Laundries suggests you have school clothes cleaned now. They have a special monogramming service which adds a personal touch to sweaters, shirts, blouses and the like.

Gold Shield Laundries Say Clean School Clothes Now

It's back-to-school time again! Atlanta schools, opening September 3, will soon be jammed with boys and girls, and school halls will resound with young laughter.

To the mothers and fathers of school children—and college offspring, too—the last few days before school actually opens are busy, harrassing ones. Getting school clothes ready for excited youngsters is not exactly simple.

Gold Shield Laundries, composed of nine plants—May's, Decatur, Piedmont, Troy, Trio, Capital City, Guthman, Excelsior, and American—have helped Atlanta mothers for more than a half century to pave the way to school by offering the finest dry cleaning money can buy... by giving high-quality laundry service. Many mothers have discovered that left-over garments when cleaned properly have many years of good service left in them.

S. R. Greenblatt, president of Atlanta Laundries, Inc., emphasizes the wisdom of keeping clothes in excellent condition.

"The defense program will make an indelible impression on all our clothes closets," says Mr. Greenblatt. "Many materials will be unavailable in the near future, and the government's wise policy of urging preservation of all commodities applies to clothing as well as to automobiles."

Feature attraction in the Gold Shield line-up of services for school boys and girls is their monogramming service—a "private education" in school garments. Sweaters, shirts, blouses, kerchiefs and even socks gain extra "zip" and "smash" when they have the personal touch. Gold Shield is equipped to put three-initial monograms on boys' or girls' garments.

NEW DEPARTMENT FOR BROOKS-SHATTERLY—E. C. Shatterly, owner, is having D. N. Carmichael, manager of the new home appliance department, try out a radio. The new division sells refrigerators, water heaters, washers, gas and electric ranges, vacuum cleaners, sewing machines and stokers.

Manufacturers' Sales Tax Liked By Vandenberg

Senator Sees "Substantial Support" for His Proposal.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, proposed today a 5 per cent manufacturers' sales tax to raise approximately $1,250,000,000 in new revenues, and asserted there was "substantial support" for the proposal within the senate finance committee.

Declaring that about $400,000,000 in new excise levies in the house-approved $3,236,700,000 revenue bill involved "discrimination," Vandenberg urged that a manufacturers' sales tax exempting food, clothing and medicine be substituted in their stead. This would increase prospective yields $850,000,000, he said.

"There has been a lot of propaganda spread around to the effect that a sales tax would hit the poor man hardest, but that isn't true," Vandenberg told reporters.

He said studies indicated that only 20 per cent of the average wage earner's income would be affected, if food, clothing, medicine and services were not taxed. Observing that the finance committee was almost certain to face a decision on the sales tax question, Chairman George, Democrat, Georgia, indicated that such a proposal would not have administrative support. He added, however, that "several" senators were strongly inclined to obtain additional revenue that way.

George said the committee also would study a proposal of the United States Chamber of Commerce to impose a "withholding" payroll tax. The chamber said such a tax would raise $2,000,000,000, but George said he doubted that sufficient revenue could be obtained to make the institution of such a levy worthwhile if "reasonable" credits were allowed to wage earners to pay for the necessities of life.

Norge Line Is Taken On By Shatterly

New Home Appliance Department in Charge of D. N. Carmichael.

A new home appliance department, featuring a complete line of well-known electrical equipment, has been established at Brooks-Shatterly Company, corner Houston and Ivy streets, as announced by E. C. Shatterly, owner and manager of the concern.

Featured in the new department are Norge electric refrigerators, gas and electric hot water heaters, washers, gas and electric ranges, Magic-Aire vacuum cleaners, Maytag washers, G. E. and Emerson radios, Lockwood stokers, and White sewing machines. The equipment is sold completely installed and attractive terms are available.

Manager of the new department is D. N. Carmichael, who has had a number of years' experience in this type of merchandise, and he invites his friends to visit him in this home appliance department. B. J. Hollingsworth and B. L. Bueren are the courteous salesmen who aid in looking after customers.

The Brooks-Shatterly Company, well established in this city for a long time, are now enjoying the largest business in its history. One of the largest increases shown in its business is on U. S. Royal Master tires, which is an indication, Mr. Shatterly says, that the public is getting away from price buying. Speaking of the new home appliance department, Mr. Shatterly says:

"We are very proud of our new department and we believe that it will fill a real need in the community in offering such a complete variety of home appliances. We shall endeavor to offer in our new division the same high-type service that has always characterized our tires and auto accessory business."

Council To Get Mixed Drinks Proposal Today

Bill May Be Referred To Tax Committee For Fee Study.

A proposed ordinance to legalize sale of mixed drinks at hotels and large restaurants is scheduled to be considered this afternoon by city council at its regular session.

The police committee approved a draft of such an ordinance last week and will introduce it at the meeting. However, it was expected the proposal will be referred to the tax committee to set up a scale of license fees before council takes final action on the proposal.

Alderman L. O. Mosley, an author of the measure, said no decision has been reached yet on the size of the business which would be allowed to sell "over-the-counter" drinks.

Also scheduled to be considered by council are amendments to the filling station ordinance; a measure to give lieutenant's pay to M. L. Thomas and Emmett Elliott, traffic engineers, and a paper to repeal a 1927 ordinance prohibiting placing of any signs on the flagpole at Five Points.

Advances men for the program, which is heard over a national network each Saturday night from Nashville, Tenn., are already at Fort Benning making the arrangements for the appearance of the entertainers, who will arrive today in a six-car "caravan."

Major George A. Sossaman, post morale officer, said that the show was being sent to United States Army camps all over the country as a good-will gesture by its sponsor.

BENNING TO TAKE PART IN "VOX POP" PROGRAM

Some of the "folks back home" probably will be surprised tonight to hear the voice of Fort Benning or brother Fort Benning.

The reason is that the chief actors in a half-hour radio program scheduled from Fort Benning over the affiliated stations of the Columbia Broadcasting System tonight will be privates, corporals and sergeants from organizations now on the post.

The program will be the CBS "Vox Pop" quiz program with Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth conducting the interviews from 7 to 7:30 (EST) on the stage of Fort Benning's main theater.

LAWSON FIELD RECEIVES AIR TRAINING REQUIREMENT

An advance copy of the eligibility requirements for enlisted men's aviation student training has been received at Lawson Field, Fort Benning.

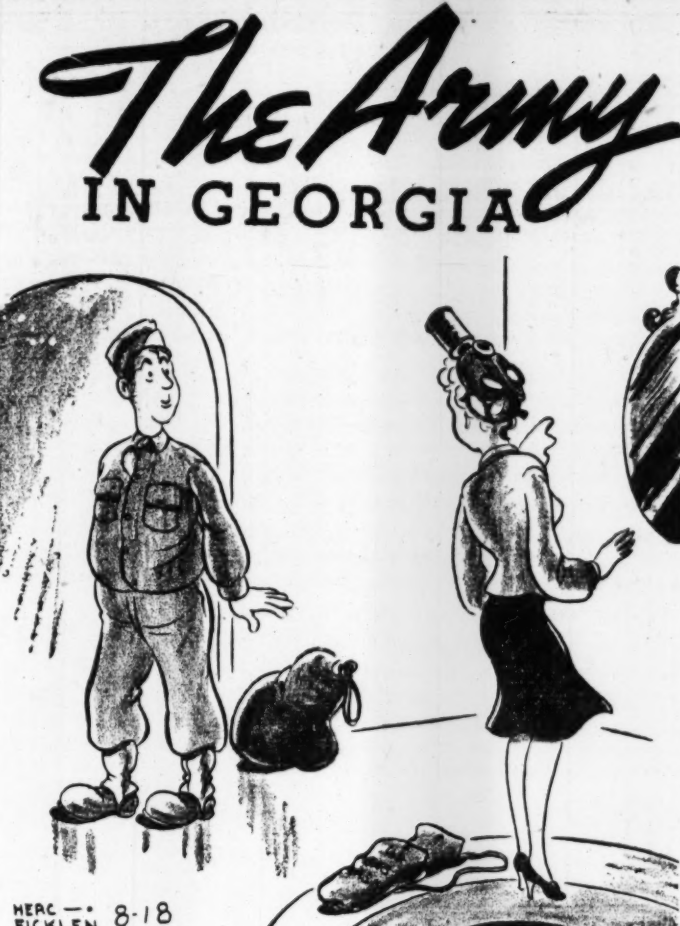

All enlisted men of the Regular Army or of other components of the Army of the United States in active federal service who are unmarried, between the ages of 18 and 28, graduates of accredited secondary schools and who meet the physical and moral requirements are eligible.

In addition, each enlisted man who applies for aviation student training must sign an agreement to the consent of parents or guardian, if a minor, by which he will agree to enlist for a period of three years if he has less than one year to complete his current term of service.

He must also agree upon successful completion of pilot training (about eight months) to re-enlist again in order to serve three years as an enlisted pilot. Finally, he must remain unmarried during the period of training and during his first enlistment as a "flying sergeant."

EVEN INDIANS WENT SOUTH FOR TRAINING

CAMP WHEELER, Ga., Aug. 17. Northern trainees at Camp Wheel-

VACANCIES exist for the immediate appointment of approximately 500 second lieutenants in the Signal Corps Reserve, according to word received at Fort Benning, the adjutant-general's office of the War Department.

Headquarters of the Fourth Corps Area in Atlanta has been requested to make special efforts to obtain applications for appointment in the Signal Corps Reserve from qualified applicants within the jurisdiction of the corps area.

The adjutant-general's office pointed out that applicants must have a college degree, or its virtual equivalent, in electrical engineering, have specialized in radio communication or have been electronic physicists.

NEGRO SOLDIERS PRAISED FOR MUSICAL PROGRAM

Brigadier-General Omar N. Bradley, commanding general of Fort Benning and commandant of the Infantry School, warmly praised the performance last week of negro soldiers taking part in the second "Hour of Music" program staged by the chorus, quintet, and band of the Fort Benning Reception Center.

One among the several hundred officers, soldiers and civilian visitors who listened to the program at Gowdy Field, General Bradley explained briefly to the audience the purposes of the Reception Center, and congratulated the participants in the program on their development of creditable musical organizations within a brief period of time.

He was introduced by Lieutenant-Colonel Frank Lockhead, commanding officer of the Reception Center.

BENNING TO HEAR "GRAND OLE OP'RY"

Free entertainment and free "smokes" indicate "a good time will be had by all" when the radio program, "Grand Ole Op'ry," is presented to soldiers of Fort Benning at 8:30 o'clock tonight on Gowdy Field.

In addition to presenting an entertainment nearly two hours in length, the R. J. Reynolds Company, sponsor of the program, has made arrangements for girls to distribute cigarettes among the soldiers attending the show.

Advances men for the program, which is heard over a national network each Saturday night from Nashville, Tenn., are already at Fort Benning making the arrangements for the appearance of the entertainers, who will arrive today in a six-car "caravan."

CITY AUDITORIUM Work Will Begin

Excavation work on the new front for the municipal auditorium is to be started today by the WPA, Burt Wellborn, manager of the auditorium, said he was notified yesterday.

The WPA has agreed to excavate for the new front section and to erect a skeleton building while the city is to complete the structure. The WPA will spend $48,570 on the project, which will cost a total of about $260,000. The city plans to complete the building by contract.

The front section of the auditorium was destroyed by fire November 11, 1940.

Norway's Church Bells

Food for Hitler's Guns

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 17.—(AP)—All church bells in Norway have been ordered delivered to German authorities for use "for urgent purposes of state"—ostensibly war materials, the Norwegian correspondent of the newspaper Dagens Nyheter reported today.

The correspondent said the order was issued by Reichskommissar Joseph Terboven. Several weeks ago police in Norway were told to gather information about the weight and quality of the bells.

The Germans agreed to pay for the bells and promised to replace them with new ones after the war.

Bermuda Life Found Dull by U. S. Soldiers

Palatial Hotel Converted Into Barracks for Army and Navy.

Although Bermuda has been considered as a paradise and an ideal place to spend a vacation, Uncle Sam's sailors and soldiers now stationed there have an entirely different opinion of the island, according to Carl Hall, of Birmingham.

Hall, an architect and engineer, stopped over in Atlanta last night while en route to his home after several months spent on the island as an employee of Robert & Company, engineers engaged in building of the American naval air base.

No Amusement

"There's no amusement there for the soldier," Hall said.

"Although the United States has leased a $4,000,000 hotel, as palatial a hotel as any in the United States, and is using it as a barracks for the enlisted men, there's still plenty of dissatisfied soldiers in the hotel's palatial suites."

Hall pointed out that the government is busily engaged in constructing theaters and recreation fields, there's a tremendous shortage of feminine companionship for the soldier.

"The island has a population of only 30,000 people," Hall said. "Of course, this comprises the men, women and children, so it's easy to see there are no girls for the soldiers to dance with."

"The only thing a soldier can do now when he gets a pass is walk down the principal street of Hamilton and window shop, or hire a hack at $2 per hour and ride about over the island. He can also rent a bicycle and pedal away, but one soon grows tired of this, and the bikes and hacks cost money."

"What the American soldier wants in Bermuda is American girls for companionship and some good, old-fashioned American dances and such."

Decatur To Have Soldiers' Center

A recreation center for service men is to be established on the top floor of the old Cooper home on Sycamore street in Decatur on land recently purchased by the city for a park, Mayor A. F. Newman announced yesterday.

Development of the service center is to be sponsored by the President's Club, composed of presidents of civic organizations in Decatur. Vernon Frank is president of the group.

Civic clubs in Decatur will sponsor a series of entertainments for soldiers and Navy men as soon as the project is complete.

Mexico City Firemen

Save 18 Tons of TNT

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 17.—(AP)—A large fire in the government munitions factory here today endangered 18 tons of stored TNT while squads of firemen and federal troops battled three hours to control the flames.

Most of the TNT was scheduled for shipment to the United States under a contract with the War Department.

Because of fear of a disastrous explosion, troops evacuated homes for a number of blocks around the factory until the fire had been put out.

OPM Asks Big Iron Ore Boats For Great Lakes

Emergency Fleet of 25 Vessels Would Cost $50,000,000.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The Office of Production Management recommended to the Maritime Commission today that an emergency fleet of 25 Great Lakes iron ore boats be constructed at a cost of about $50,000,000 for delivery in 1943.

Officials said the additional craft would be necessary to move iron ore for the expanded steel program, and that a greater fleet ultimately might be found necessary. The boats would be about 600 feet long and have net carrying capacities of 12,000 to 13,000 long tons each.

The day also produced these other developments connected with the national defense efforts:

1. The government added a number of commodities to those already under export control. The new items included practically all wood pulp, metals and manufactures, machinery and vehicles, rubber and manufactures, and chemicals and related products (except certain pharmaceuticals and medicines) not listed in previous export control schedules.

2. Military bar netting, sewing machines and all types of business machines were added to the priorities critical list. This list includes all items on which army and navy contracting officers may assign preference ratings above the priority regulation means that army and navy orders must be filled ahead of civilian contracts.

3. Secretary of the Navy Knox informed Governor Herbert H. Lehman, of New York, that men in the naval service would be returned to private life as soon as possible after the emergency ends, even though their terms of enlistment have not been concluded.

Island Chains in East Atlantic Form Buffer for African Hump

Crescent-Shaped Formation Screens Coast, Holds Vital Positions in Defense; Azores Nearest to United States.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.
DAKAR, French West Africa, Aug. 17.—On both sides of the Atlantic ocean statesmen and military experts are anxiously watching developments in northwest Africa and its screen of Portuguese and Spanish islands. Will these regions be drawn into the war? Will the Vichy government give Germany access to French ports on the African coast? If so, what will be the United States' reaction?

In discussing this area, which President Roosevelt has declared is vitally related to American defense, the National Geographic Society describes its geographic and economic features as having great potential bearing on the course of the war.

Island chains in the east Atlantic form a crescent-shaped buffer not only for the bulge of Africa but for Gibraltar, gateway to the Mediterranean. They are little more than dots on a map, and their combined population is only about 1,250,000, but their location gives them strategic importance far beyond their size.

Azores Nearest

Northernmost and nearest to the United States are the Azores, which have taken on new life since the advent of transatlantic airplane service. On the direct route of Pan American Airways, they are a little more than two-thirds of the 3,450 miles from New York to Lisbon. An added stop at Bermuda, however, increases the distance by about 445 miles.

Off the coast of French Morocco and on a line with Bermuda are the tiny Madeira Islands, home of famed wine and embroidery. The Canaries, approximately half way between Gibraltar and Dakar, are close to Spain's African colony of Rio de Oro. The Cape Verde Islands, 375 miles west of Dakar, are fueling stops for much South Atlantic shipping. All these groups except the Spanish-owned Canaries belong to Portugal.

Volcanic in origin, the islands possess natural defenses in their mountains and rugged coasts. There are few protected harbors large enough to base sizable fleets. Ordinarily only small military units have been maintained, but this summer Portugal has augmented the troops in her island territories. Spain last December provided for a military base at Las Palmas in the Canaries.

Attractive to Tourists
Peacetime visitors find all these islands attractive because of their year-round sunshine and such contrasting scenery as palm trees at the base of snow-capped peaks. Rich lava soil and elaborate irrigation systems enable the islanders to produce all kinds of tropical crops, notably sugar, fruits, and coffee. Most non-agricultural goods must be imported, however, for beyond farming and fishing there is little industry.

Behind the island screen, the great northwest African bulge presents a jigsaw picture of the colonial possessions of France, Great Britain, Portugal, and Spain. Along the southern curve of the bulge, even the United States has an unofficial "protector" in Liberia, Africa's only independent republic which for more than a century has maintained especially friendly relations with Uncle Sam.

Conquered France holds by far the largest stretch of this African territory. Her possessions also have figured most prominently in recent politico-economic strategy. The Atlantic ports of Casablanca, in Morocco, and Dakar, in French West Africa, have been singled out in speculation about possible German bases.

Has Fine Harbor.

Dakar, goal of the unsuccessful attempt at capture by British and "Free French" forces last year, is especially significant as the nearest African port to the Western Hemisphere. Only 1,870 miles separate it from Brazilian Natal, southwest across the Atlantic. Dakar has one of the safest and best harbors of the African west coast. Its up-to-date port normally handles much of the trade in this part of the world. Even before the outbreak of the present war, its strategic position and facilities had resulted in new fortifications and various improvements in the city and vicinity, looking toward its use as a naval and air base to be operated jointly by the former British and French allies. Today, as a roughly half-way mark along the African coast, Dakar overlooks Atlantic sea lanes along which Britain's vital needs in cotton and oil, meat and grains come from the south.

Casablanca, France's strategic port on this African shore, is not only the leading trade gateway into Morocco but an important station along sea and air routes leading to western Europe and the Mediterranean. It is only about 300 miles southwest of Gibraltar. Like Dakar, Casablanca has seen considerable improvement as a good natural harbor, so the French port in recent years. It had no built one. France has poured funds into the building of this city as an important commercial center, and its growth has been spectacular. During the last quarter of a century, port tonnage increased by more than 1,500 percent, while its population rose from 20,000 to 175,000, including, in normal times, some 75,000 Europeans.

Production Important.
All of the French areas shown on the accompanying map have continued to maintain official allegiance to the Vichy government. The "Free French" movement is in control farther east and south, in French Equatorial Africa and the Cameroons.

Like the rest of French North Africa, Morocco and Algeria are important as a source of peacetime economic production and of support for armies in war. They provide war-needed minerals, leather, and wool, as well as grains and grapes (especially prized by the bread-eating, wine-drinking Frenchmen), and such supplementary supplies as olive oil, dates, citrus fruits, and vegetables. During the 1914-18 World War, French North Africa and French West Africa accounted for a large share of the manpower contributed by the empire.

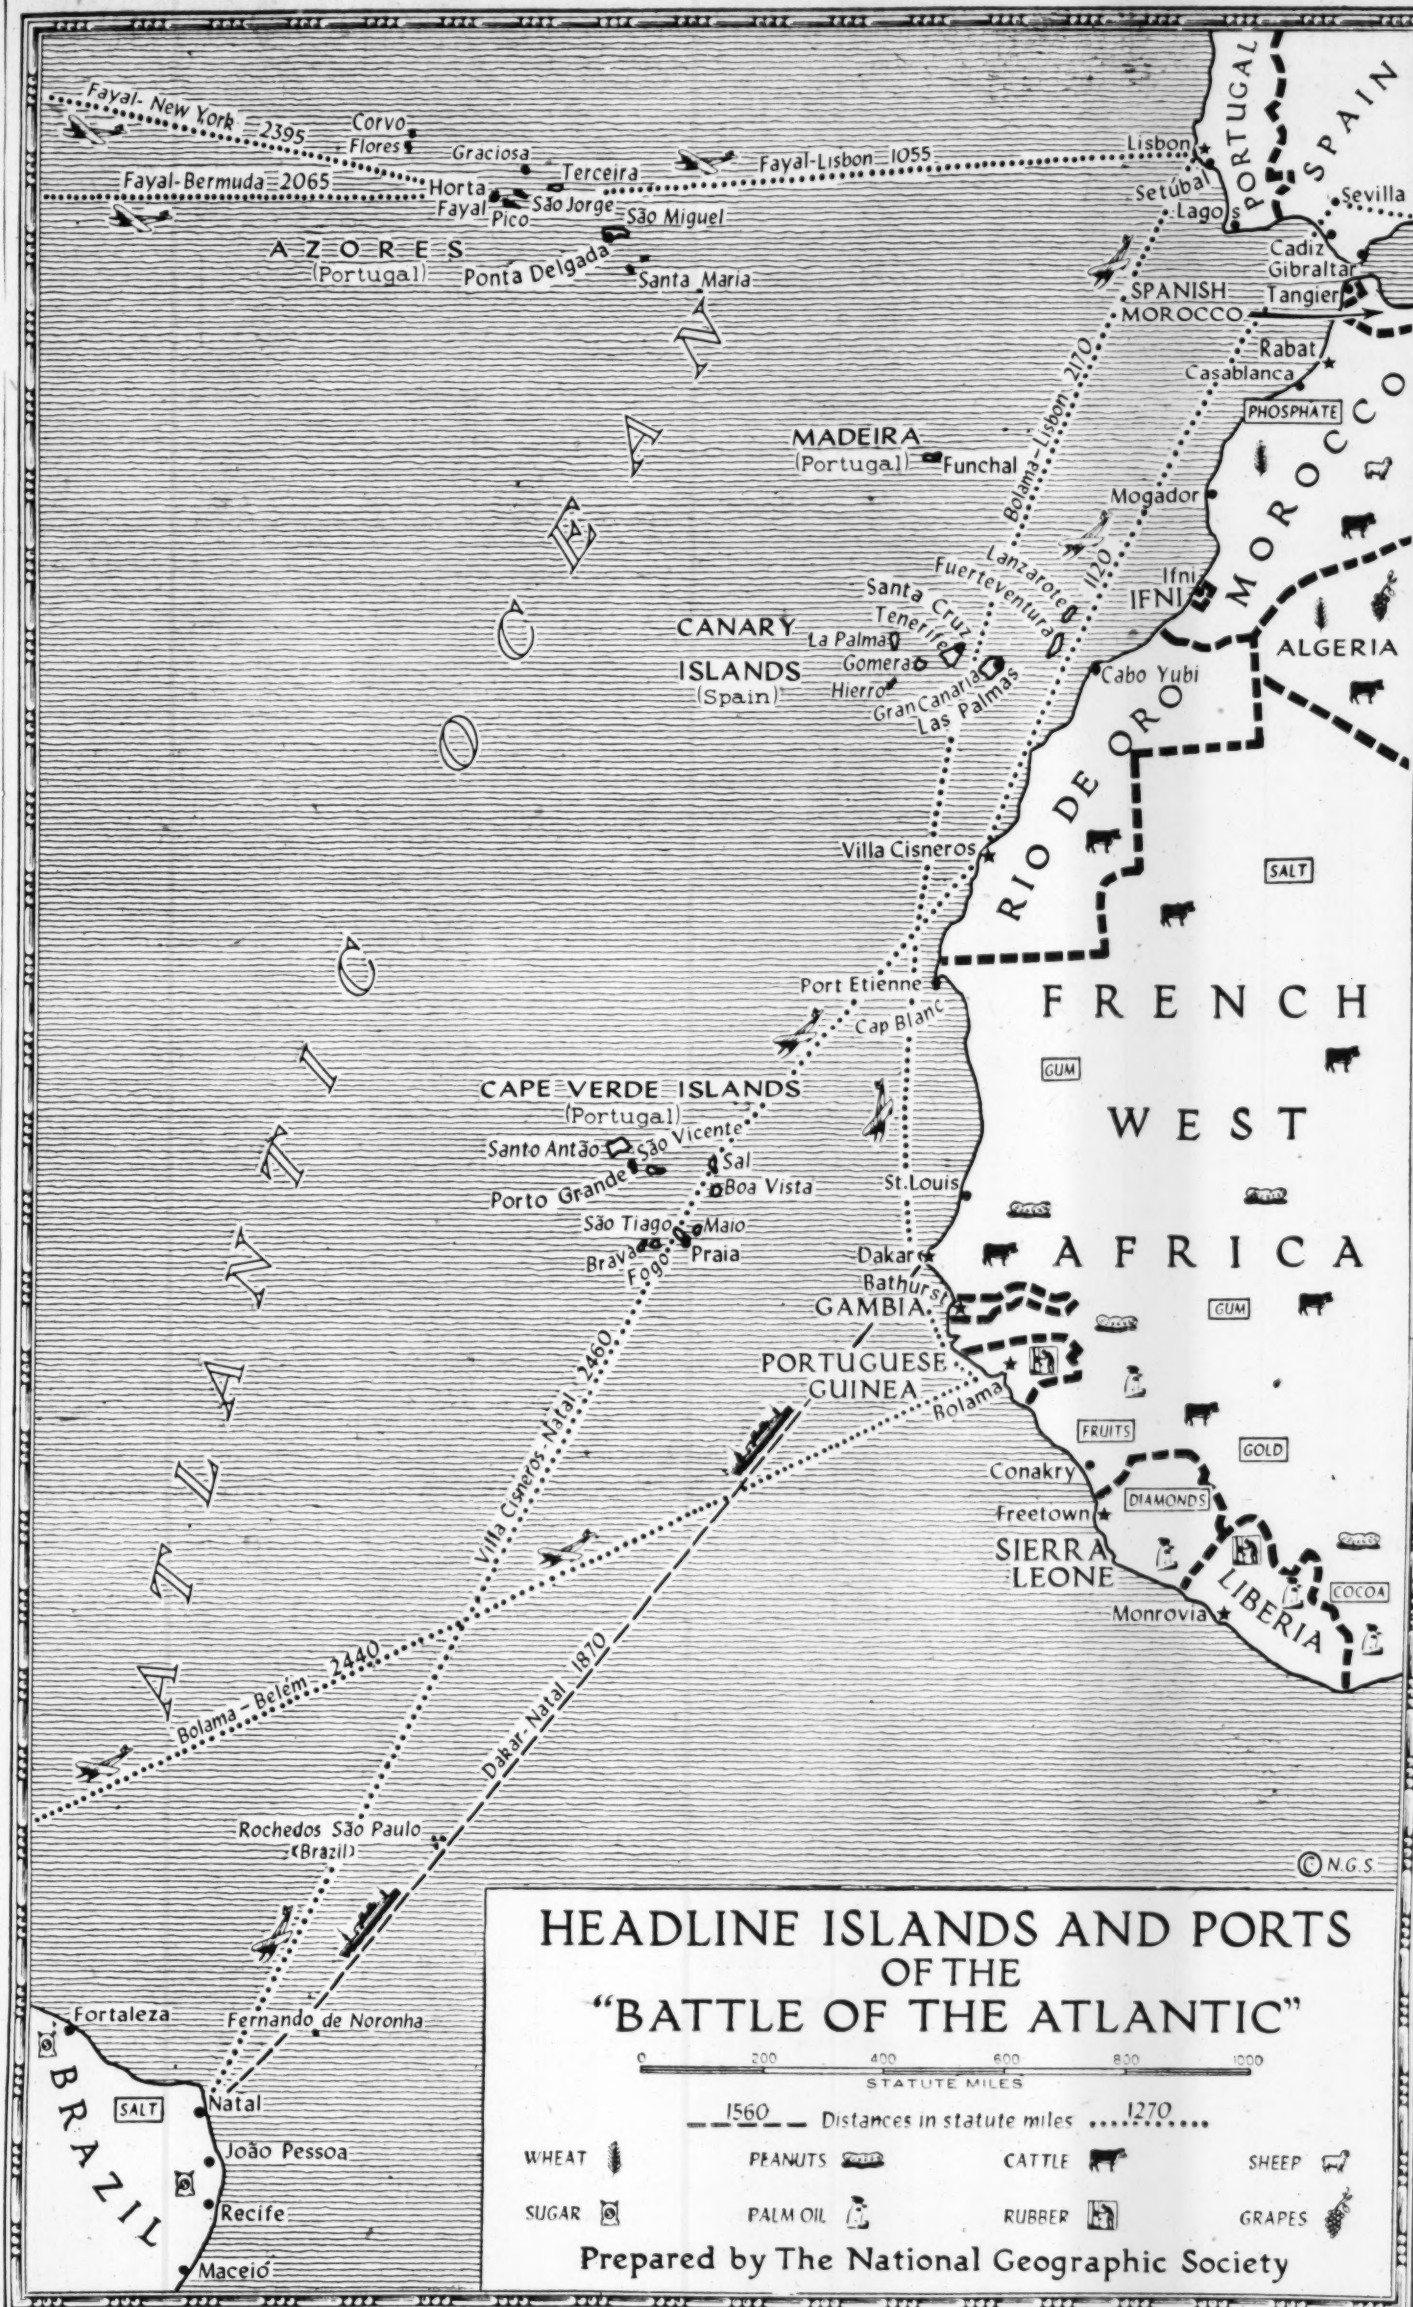

Huge French West Africa, with its subdivisions of Mauritania, Senegal, French Guinea, French Sudan, and the Ivory Coast, spreads over an area of about 1,815,000 square miles—or more than seven times that of Texas.

It has, however, only about 15 million inhabitants, since much of the inland territory is the rocky, unproductive land of the Sahara. In the fertile areas, on the other hand, agricultural promotion in recent years has brought about remarkable increases in the production of such crops as millet, rice, and corn, as well as cotton and vegetable oils added to the old jungle output of gum, ivory and rubber.

Strategic Outposts.
The 19th-century dream of linking northern and western colonies of French Africa, thus opening up the resource-rich sections of the interior, has been given new impetus, according to recent economic reports. Work now is said to be under way on the more than 2,000-mile Trans-Saharan Railway, planned to reach eventually from the Mediterranean port of Oran, Algeria, to Dakar.

Compared with the French holdings, Great Britain's Sierra Leone and Gambia are tiny patches on the great shoulder of Africa. They occupy, however, useful positions as outposts of empire on the continental sweep overlooking Atlantic trade routes around the tip of South America and by way of the Cape of Good Hope.

They occupy, however, useful positions as outposts of empire on the continental sweep overlooking Atlantic trade routes around the tip of South America and by way of the Cape of Good Hope.

Sierra Leone's port and capital, Freetown, is considered the best harbor along the coast, capable of accommodating the largest fleets. During the 1914-18 war, it was an important convoy port and mobilization headquarters for all British West African regiments. Bathurst, capital of British Gambia, was a regular stop, until the outbreak of the present war, on an air route between western Europe and the east coast of South America.

Guards Narrows.
Neighboring Portuguese Guinea also is small but significant. The only mainland possession of Portugal along the bulge, it produces a number of valuable products such as peanuts, wax, vegetable oils, seeds and hides. It has a good system of roads. Its outstanding importance, however, is as a strategic point because of the naval base at the chief port of Bissau and because its capital of Bolama is a landing station for the westbound trans-Atlantic planes on the southern, alternate route of Pan-American Airways.

Last but not least, among the imperial powers in West Africa is Spain. Although mountainous Spanish Morocco, barren Rio de Oro and the tiny French-ruled spot of Ifni offer the motherland little in the way of developed resources, they are so located as to guard the narrowest sea gates in this part of the world. Between Ifni and the nearest island of the Spanish Canaries, for instance, is a distance of less than 200 miles; from the islands to the coast of Rio de Oro is only about 70 miles.

Still more important is Spanish Morocco, which, together with the former International Zone now occupied by the forces of Nationalist Spain, forms the southern shore of the Gibraltar entrance to the Mediterranean.

British Gibraltar, bristling with guns, is surrounded on three sides by Spanish territory, which has been reported heavily armed. Spanish Morocco is less than 14 miles away on the south; on the north Gibraltar is linked with the Spanish mainland, while to the west, only five miles across the Bay of Algeiras, lies the also fortified Spanish port of Algeiras.

BIG GUNS FIRED.
FOLKSTONE, Eng., Aug. 17.—(UP)—German long-range guns on the French coast fired several two-gun salvos across the Straits of Dover at 10 minutes before midnight. It was believed they were aiming at a British convoy.

It has, however, only about 15 million inhabitants, since much of the inland territory is the rocky, unproductive land of the Sahara. Between Ifni and the nearest island of the Spanish Canaries, for instance, is a distance of less than 200 miles; from the islands to the coast of Rio de Oro is only about 70 miles.

Still more important is Spanish Morocco, which, together with the former International Zone now occupied by the forces of Nationalist Spain, forms the southern shore of the Gibraltar entrance to the Mediterranean.

British Gibraltar, bristling with guns, is surrounded on three sides by Spanish territory, which has been reported heavily armed. Spanish Morocco is less than 14 miles away on the south; on the north Gibraltar is linked with the Spanish mainland, while to the west, only five miles across the Bay of Algeiras, lies the also fortified Spanish port of Algeiras.

Sister Warship Of Bismarck Believed Ready

Nazi Paper Publishes Photograph of New Craft.

BERLIN, Aug. 17.—(UP)—The newspaper Voelkischer Beobachter today published on the front page a photograph of a warship at sea firing 15-inch guns, leading to a belief that a sister ship to the ill-fated Bismarck has been completed and put in service.

The caption beneath the picture in Adolf Hitler's newspaper said: "New German battleship speaks impressive language with its 38-centimeter (15-inch) guns."

The photograph shows a salvo being fired from the lower of two forward two-gun turrets—the same structure as the Bismarck which was sunk by units of the Royal navy 400 miles west of Brest on May 27, three days after it had sunk H. M. S. Hood in an engagement between Greenland and Iceland.

The newspaper did not publish any statistics on the new ship beyond the caliber of her guns. It did not indicate where the photograph was taken or whether the new battleship has yet been commissioned.

It was recalled, however, that the pocket battleship Deutschland almost a year and a half ago was renamed the Luetow to make the name Deutschland available to a larger ship.

The naval handbook lists in addition to the sunken Bismarck and the previously commissioned Tirpitz—both begun in 1939—only one "scheduled" battleship which is rumored to be about 40,000 tons and believed to have been started in 1939. However, it was further rumored that the keel of a sister ship to such a boat was laid down in the same year.

Rescued Horn Shell

Sailors Reach Brazil

RECIFE, Brazil, Aug. 17.—(P)—The 6,489-ton Brazilian freighter Cuyaba arrived from Europe today with Captain Archibald MacDougall, two engineers and two British and 10 Chinese seamen of the 8,272-ton British tanker Horn Shell sunk July 26 by a German submarine 300 miles west of Madeira.

The Horn Shell bound from the Mediterranean for Aruba was torpedoed without warning, Captain MacDougall said. The crew of 60 took to the ship's four boats, and the Cuyaba sighted one of these 13 days later on August 8.

Nazi General Reported Killed; Rome Denies It

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(P)—Radio broadcasts from two belligerent capitals head in New York reported and then denied today the death of Lieutenant General Eduard Dietl, commander of German troops on the Finnish front.

The official Soviet news agency declared in a Moscow broadcast that "according to reliable sources" in Stockholm Dietl had been killed in fighting west of the Arctic port of Murmansk.

The report was denied by the Rome radio in a shortwave newscast picked up later by NBC. "As a matter of fact," the Rome announcer said, "General Dietl has just decorated a number of members of workers units, who distinguished themselves in the fight against the Bolsheviks, with the Iron Cross."

U.S. Pilots Hide Big Plane From Jap Bombers

Repairing of Transport Under Fire in China Described.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(P)—How a crew of American airmen hid a 12-ton commercial transport plane from Japanese bombers which had torn off its right wing at the Siufu, China, airport was related today in information from the China National Aviation Corporation.

Hugh L. Woods, of Colorado Springs, Colo., employed by C. N. A. C., and his helpers not only succeeded in hiding the big plane, they repaired it under fire and flew it away.

The plane was bombed May 20. Pictures and details on the incident today reached Pan American Airways, transoceanic flying boat operator which owns C. N. A. C. in partnership.

Woods had taken off from Chungking when he was advised by radio that five Japanese bombers were in the vicinity. Diving, he landed on a tiny intermediate field at Siufu, rolled the plane to the cover of some trees and disembarked his passengers.

Scarcely a minute later, the Japanese dropped more than 200 bombs on the port. One tore off the transport's right wing.

Woods radioed Hongkong for a new wing and, with Coolie help, pushed the damaged ship into trees three miles from the airport. On the second day, several flights of bombers, numbering up to 50 machines in each, flew over machinegunning the area from low altitudes and hunting the transport.

Meanwhile, Captain Harold Arthur Sweet, of Salt Lake City, another C. N. A. C. flier, strapped a spare wing to the belly of a relief transport and flew it to Siufu.

Woods, his crew and Sweet boated the spare wing to the damaged transport and pushed it back to the airport.

There, Coolies had filled in enough bomb craters to make a runway suitable for a takeoff. Sweet followed Woods with the second transport. Both landed safely in Hongkong.

Clear Liquid Dries Nail Enamel Quickly

By Winifred Ware.

Are you one of those busy people who never has time to let her nail polish dry? Consequently one nail nearly always gets smeared, doesn't it? Well, here's a preparation which will help you out by cutting the drying time of your polish in half!

It's a new, water-clear liquid to be applied after the final coat of nail enamel.

Put on your polish in the way you prefer, using either one or two coats. When the final coat has been applied to all ten fingers apply a medium thin film of this liquid to the entire nail, from end to end. Then hold the brush under the nail tip, letting the liquid run under the edge of the nail tip. This under-application hardens into a shell which acts as a support for the nails. It allows them to grow longer, without breaking off.

This preparation will make your polish wear longer, will make it even more resistant to chipping and peeling. It heightens the brilliance into a diamond-like gleam. But most appealing to me is that fact about cutting the drying time in half. I don't know how or why this is so, but I find it is true. Nails are dry before you realize it, even when two coats of polish have been used!

If you're interested in cutting down the drying time at the same time that you increase the efficiency of your polish you can get more information about this preparation by calling Winifred Ware at Walnut 6565 or writing her in care of The Constitution, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FHA Loans Put Homes Within Reach

The joys of putting around a garden, of seeing your property grow lovelier year by year! You never know what fun it is to fix up a home until you have one of your own. And that's where a Federal Housing Administration loan may help you—these questions and answers show.

Q. What's the maximum FHA loan?
A. Loans are available for homes valued up to $20,000. For a property up to $6,000 you need only make a 10 per cent down payment. For example, with $400 you can buy an existing $4,000 property or you could build a home of the same value. Your loan would be $3,600 and monthly payments would be $20.90 over a 25-year period.

Much more advice on construction is given in our 40-page booklet, "Low-Cost Homes—Planning, Financing, Building." Includes photographs and plans for 29 homes. Explains FHA financing; also remodeling old houses.

Swallow Pride to Preserve a Home

By DIXIE GEORGE.

Dear Dixie:
Two weeks ago my husband told me he loved another woman. He said he did not know whether he wanted her or our baby and me. By his actions and ways, I believe he had been doing, but I have no proof of this. I still love him and want to live with him for the baby's sake. She loves him dearly, and he loves her. She is only 17 months old. We are both 22 years old. My brother and his father talked to him, and he said he did not care for the other woman, but said that since he had been going with her he did not feel for the baby any more. He said: "How can I go back to my wife and baby and take them in my arms and love them as I once did?"

I feel that I can get over this awful heartache, if he will only tell me he no longer cares for the other woman and that he wants to make me happy. I still love him, but not as much as I did and it is getting less and less every day. I want him back, that is why I am giving him a chance. I am a nervous wreck. I am not willing to give my love to a man who does not love me. Must I ask him if he loves me? How can I find out what I want to know? My love will die if he does not co-operate. I have been more than fair to him, but I feel that he is not being appreciative of what I am doing for him. Do you think I expect too much and do you think that I am giving too much? I only want the happiness that was once ours. He said once he wanted me so much. Should I put much dependence on that?

FAITHFUL WIFE AND MOTHER
My advice to you is to stick at home with your child and let your husband run around, for he will get over it and come back to you. I know it is a hard and bitter pill to swallow, to have to sit at home and know that he is being unfaithful to you, and that he is openly going with another woman. I really believe that deep down in his heart, he still loves you and the baby and is just having his little fling. A lot of men do that and they get over it and come back to their wife and child. It is his place to support you and the baby and by your leaving him he will not help matters any in your direction. I do not think that you expect too much from him, and I do not think you are giving too much. I think you might let him know that you are fully aware of his affair and that you do not consider it too important, but also let him know that you do not intend to let another woman have what belongs to you. Of course I know there is not much incentive now with the way he is acting, but remember you have the future of your home and your child to consider and you will have to forget yourself for the time being. Your pride is hurt, of course, but you will have to overlook that for a while. What is yours is yours, and that goes for your husband and his love. You said that your brother and his father had talked to him about the situation, why not engage their co-operation again and see if they could not put it across to him that he is treading on dangerous ground and that if he does not change his ways that he will lose you and the baby? This will be a bluff, of course, but it may bring him to his senses. I think all he needs is a little assurance from you that you will take him back. I think he knows he has slipped and needs a little encouragement to return.

JOB SEEMS BEST BET

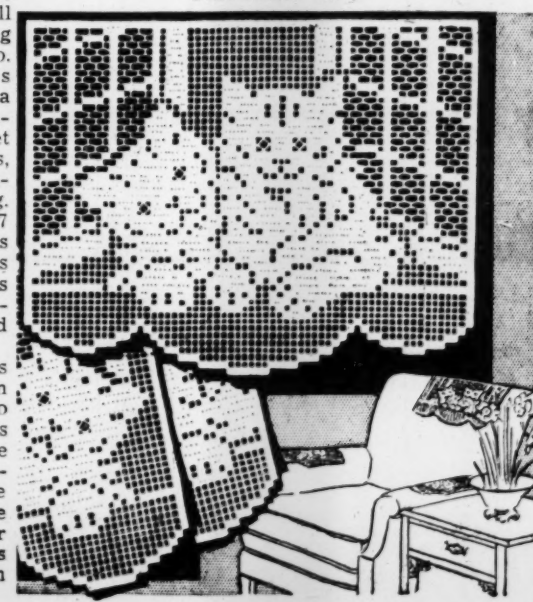

Dear Worried:
You and your sister are at a terrible disadvantage and until you are of age I am afraid that you will have to submit to this treatment. It is very hard to have to live as you tell me you are living, and unless you and your sister can gang-up against these two people, there is nothing you can do. Between the two of you, I think you could make the others rather ashamed of themselves for the way they act. Have you thought of writing your own mother and asking her advice and trying to go to live with her? Unless by law you and your sister are forced to live where you are now, I think if I were you, I would make some attempt to go to my own mother. It would be a grand thing if you could get a job to take you out of the situation, and I would advise you to do it if possible.

Exercise Builds a Muscular Girdle

By Ida Jean Kain.

To be streamlined, you must have a good muscular girdle. But once when I wrote and gave the technique for acquiring one, a lazy lassie who didn't read on wrote to ask where she could buy one. Well, sister, a muscular girdle is one money can't buy.

Let me tell you something about this girdle. Nature designed it for you and the muscles run in different directions to balance each other and give the best possible support. There are long, narrow muscles running the full length of the midsection from wishbone to pelvis. A set of broad flat muscles come in at an angle from the sides. Then underneath are layers of other muscles.

These various groups form the abdominal wall and from the standpoint of health as well as streamline it is important that they be kept in good tone. Your natural girdle should be so strong that you could, when it pleased you, get along without the bought kind. This doesn't mean you wouldn't look better for wearing the manufactured variety—most figures improve perceptibly with one. But it should be depended upon as a finishing touch only. Your own good muscles should be your main support.

If you have allowed your abdominal muscles to become flabby, stretched and interlarded with fat, you probably feel that reconditioning is hopeless. But with a few exercises planned to strengthen all sets of muscles, you can regain that nice firm feeling about the middle in a surprisingly short time. The most efficient and least tiring exercise position is lying flat on your back, knees flexed and feet on the floor. This position also precludes the possibility of strain. Here is a good set:

In the position described, pull up and in with the abdominal muscles and push the small of the back flat against the floor. Relax and repeat.

Then from the same position pull up and in with the abdominal muscles and twist knees to alternate sides. Relax and repeat.

Keep the knees flexed and raise alternate thighs toward chest. One foot should move toward floor as the other thigh is brought to chest.

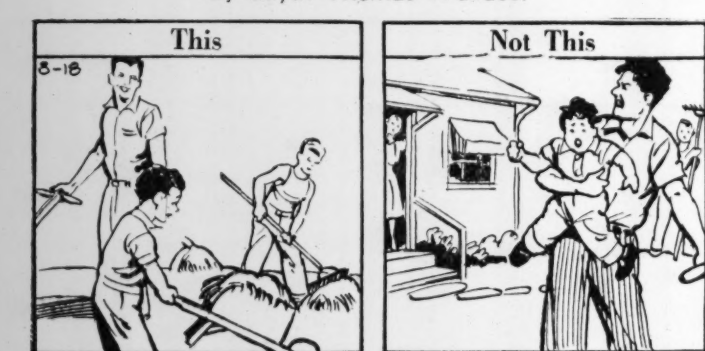

Finally, stretch the legs straight down on the floor, and, keeping knees straight, raise alternate legs to right angles.

Today's Charm Tip

One of the least charming gestures a woman may commit is slipping a hand into a blouse front to adjust her shoulder straps. With the adjustable straps on slips, there is no excuse for it.

Linda Darnell's Birthday Will Save Her Studio Thousands of Dollars

By Harold Heffernan.

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 17.—Come November 12 and 20th Century-Fox can well afford to throw a whopping birthday party for Linda Darnell. On that date Linda will be 18 years old and studio executives figure they'll save about $40,000 a picture—because the young star will be able to work eight hours a day before the cameras instead of the present three, as required by "California law."

Alice Faye is waiting breathlessly to be told that everything about "Weekend in Havana" is okay. If there are no retakes, she'll fly to New York to rejoin husband Phil Harris—and prepare for a remarriage.

Right in the midst of the tourist season when every corner in town is crowded with autograph hunters, Paramount had to hire 100 people to seek signatures of movie stars. For the film, "Glamour Boy," which is one of those behind-the-scenes epics, a crowd must be shown fighting to get autographs of Jackie Cooper and Susanne Foster—and the real thing wouldn't do!

Greer Garson and young George Montgomery, the western star, met at Carmel a while back and although no one seems aware of it, they appear to be standing each other's company without displaying displeasure.

Reports to the contrary notwithstanding, Paramount insists there'll be no compromise on the original unhappy finale of "For Whom the Bells Toll." The screen adaptation will follow the bitter road and take its chances on a happy box office.

Believe it or not, but—Those nude statues that first greet the eyes of visitors to Mae West's apartment are statues—of Mae West.

Claudette Colbert will do love scenes with scores of visitors looking on, but when she makes portraits with her leading man she demands that the gallery doors be locked.

Wendy Barrie consumes five meals a day (three big ones among them) and still has trouble keeping up to proper weight.

Bob Hope has just finished sending out his Christmas cards—for the 1941 yule season.

Superstitious Harold Lloyd always exits through the same door he enters.

Edwin G. Robinson, inveterate cigar smoker, can't pass by a window displaying pipes.

Because her brother, Jimmy, talks so fast, Jean Cagney has purposely drilled herself to speak slowly and precisely.

George Raft does not flip that half-dollar off the screen and he has a consuming fear that folks will think he's actually tough.

William Holden, although classed as a Hollywood star, sells fertilizer for his father, at $20 a week, when not working in movies.

Frank Borzage, movie director who plays polo, claims that Hollywood polo players hit the horse more often than the ball.

Nelson Eddy, once a reporter, wrote his own publicity stories before he became famous.

William Powell receives guests in shorts.

Carole Landis has undertaken the sponsorship of an almost 3-year-old niece, Diane Carole Ross. Carole hopes to find a place for Carole, a native of San Bernardino, Cal., in her next picture, "Between the Devil." That the glamorous Carole is a first rate agent is proven by the fact that she obtained a screen break for Peggy McKenna, of Chicago, her first fan who came to Hollywood at Carole's expense, became a guest at the Landis home and then obtained a screen test.

Gracie Allen is whipping the silk stocking situation by romping around town wearing red and green tyrolean wool socks with her gray tailored suit. Topped by a tyrolean felt hat, Gracie made a Brown Derby dinner entrance the other night that provoked a clatter of silver on the tables.

Actually, Garbo's publicized "bob" is nothing more than a tucked-up hair dress. However, Joan Bennett has flung a challenge at no-cut coiffure experts by shearing 12 inches off her locks and flaunting a "feather-fluff" hair-do.

British stars threw a typical "American evening" by gathering at Herbert Marshall's home for a repast of corned beef hash and hamburgers. Among those who toyed with these plebeian edibles were the Ronald Colmans, the Nigel Bruces and the Brian Aherens.

Sarong art is the most popular of all in Army camps and that's why Dorothy Lamour is the pride and pet of the soldier boys.

When 20th Century-Fox announced that Betty Grable would wear a sarong in "Song of the Island," the studio was immediately besieged by thousands of choice requests for stills of Betty in such an outfit.

Ouida (Mrs. Basil Rathbone), Hollywood's leading party-giver, is arranging a chummy little affair for 1,500 guests on August 23. Two "nanny" orchestras will play for dancing and stars of the opera and concert world will entertain.

Latest uproar in the Hays office cleansing department centers around a full page magazine picture of Rita Hayworth posing in her own bed in a revealing black and white nightgown. The censors have turned their spotlight off sweaters for the time being to concentrate on bathing suits and negligees. Pictures of this sort are fast getting out of hand, they say.

MY DAY: A Secret Is Safe With Roosevelts

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK, Friday.—We all listened breathlessly yesterday when the radio from England gave us a statement of the peace aims, drawn up by the President and Mr. Winston Churchill. There was nothing new, nothing which I had not heard many times before in conversation about our foreign policy. Yet, stated this way to the people of the world, one felt it was an important moment in the history of world progress. Chairman May, of the Military Affairs Committee in the house of representatives, expressed very well in his short speech which followed Senator Connally's, the feeling which many of us shared.

The radio this morning brought me the news that our two sons, Elliott and Franklin Jr., were with their father during these last days "somewhere at sea." I knew that Franklin Jr. had gone off for an undisclosed length of time to these waters, but the last I heard of Elliott was several weeks ago, when he was starting to fly over undisclosed and barren areas, and no word from that time on.

It is foolish to worry, for all of us know that whatever comes we have to meet it. Everybody has to do his job in the world, but just the same that statement on the radio this morning started me off for the rest of the day with a lighter heart.

Yesterday was a very nice day. Mr. Marshall Field came to lunch with us, after which we went over to look at the library before he went to visit the Greenwich House Camp at LaGrangeville, N. Y., which is in this county. There are not many people who take their positions on boards and various organizations as seriously as Mr. Field.

I have grown to know him better through our association on the United States Committee for Refugee Children, and constantly am impressed with the fact that he gives so much of himself. He never seems to consider that the money he has donated absolves him from a personal responsibility.

There are few young men I know who would start-out for a day in the country and remember that an organization with which they had been long connected had a boys' camp near the place where they had lunched. I am sure that it would have been easy to find many reasons why it was necessary to first straight back to town, without taking the extra time to see these youngsters in their camp.

I think Mr. Field has learned what I feel is a great lesson for all of us to learn. Namely, that if we really want to know and understand the life of this nation, we must see things with our own eyes, talk to people ourselves, and build up a power of understanding through personal contact.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Rockefeller were here for the night, and a few friends were here for dinner. We had a very pleasant evening and talked about hemispheric affairs to our hearts' content.

Woman's Quiz

Q. When canning liquids in bottles before they are affixed to the bottles?

A. No, because it may prevent the formation of tight seals. The caps should merely be dipped in boiling water to sterilize them.

Q. What is a good stiffening agent for silk material?

A. Gum arabic and gelatin are good for most silks. Add 1 ounce of gelatin or gum arabic to 1 pint of cold water and beat it until it has dissolved. Dilute with hot water, the quantity depending on the stiffness desired.

Robin and Ida Brookshire Enjoy Life in New Orleans

By SALLY FORTH.

WHEN ROBIN AND IDA NEVIN BROOKSHIRE recently changed their address from Houston, Texas, to New Orleans, La., the latter's mother wrote them that she felt as though they were no farther away than East Point, having moved so much nearer to Atlanta. Ida promptly replied that it is even more like being at "home" than that, for she believes she bumps into more Atlanta people in the Crescent City than she ever would in East Point!

Although it tore Ida's heartstrings to leave Houston, because of the separation from the close friendships she has enjoyed there during the past few years, the transfer to New Orleans, a city they know and love, is a happy one.

Not only does it mean more visits back to Atlanta since she and Robin are situated so much closer than Houston, but they also have a number of friends there. Two in particular are Eben and Ruth Miller Hardie, the latter having been one of Atlanta's most popular belles prior to her marriage several years ago.

Ida and Robin are established temporarily in a furnished apartment until the one they have chosen for future residence is available for their occupancy. They have selected an attractive apartment on Hurst street and will move in between the 10th and 15th of next month.

Ida, as you know, was a popular member of the Atlanta Junior League. And when she went to Houston for residence she transferred to the league there, immediately establishing herself as a tireless and enthusiastic worker in the organization's worthy projects.

The loss to Atlanta and Houston is certainly a gain for New Orleans, and Ida's future association with the league in her newly adopted home is bound to be one of which her sister members will be proud.

Incidentally, several Atlantans, recently returned from visits to New Orleans, came home with news of Ida and Robin. According to these informants, the reception is being accorded a warm reception. And, of course, they are having a grand time revisiting all the famous restaurants, historic places of interest, etc., that make New Orleans the fascinating and romantic city that it is.

MARTHA RIDLEY and Emily Mobley returned from New York aglow with accounts of the many interesting activities they enjoyed in the east.

Martha, who spent some time in New York before Emily's arrival, visited Mrs. Alex McLanahan, formerly Miss Frances Gurr, of Macon, at her home on Fifth avenue.

After many lovely parties and exhibitions, Martha suddenly had an inspiration! She HAD to go to the zoo! So many New Yorkers never dream of doing such a thing. So Martha encountered no difficulty in disengaging her friends who had been and who promised to tag along with her.

They went to the New Bronx Zoo and when they arrived it was really so exciting that they hated to leave. Lions, huge, real, honest-to-goodness lions, walked calmly around, staring with blazing eyes, and free, absolutely scot-free! The animals are on a big, round plot of ground especially designed for them, with a moat around it. Just imagine a lion being afraid of a little ditch! The moat hasn't a drop of water in it, but the lions are somehow afraid to jump it. So that insures visitors' safety.

The monkeys, too, are free to roam around in their allotted spot, called "Monkey's Island," eating peanuts, and mocking visitors to their hearts' content! They have a moat around their island, too, but it is kept full of water, and they can't swim it! In one of the buildings is the African Plains Exhibit, which is most interesting. The animals that roam the plains of darkest Africa are shown here, such as the deer, the zebra, the gnu, and many others.

Later, when Emily joined Martha, they stayed at the Hotel des Artistes, where many famous people reside. One afternoon Martha went to tea at the studio of the noted sculptor, Julio Kilenyi. He is the artist who did the head of Abraham Lincoln for the opening celebration of the Lincoln tunnel! He also did the head of Benjamin Franklin that appeared on the Saturday Evening Post recently.

Recently, Mr. Kilenyi had a letter from Joseph Stalin asking him if he would make a head of Mark Twain for the Russian

Lectures Planned For AWWVS Course

Two well-known Atlantans will address the classes Tuesday and Thursday in the preparedness course being sponsored by the American Woman's Volunteer Service at the Atlanta Woman's Club. James J. Doran, of Davidson's, will speak on Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock and again in the evening at 8 o'clock on "The Retail Merchant and Defense." Thursday morning and evening will feature talks by Lambdin Kay, of the Community Fund, whose subject will be "What Are We Defending?"

library! Mark Twain and Charles Dickens, it seems, are the two favorite authors of the Russian people. Mr. Kilenyi, who is a Hungarian by birth, has an equally famous nephew, Edward Kilenyi, who is American-born. Edward Kilenyi was raised by Julio, and had his American debut as a pianist last fall. He received a great ovation! About three weeks ago, when Edward gave a concert in Hollywood Bowl, he was acclaimed the greatest young pianist in America. In 1936, Edward won the Grand Prix for one of his recordings. He is the only American ever to have won this honor in Paris.

Martha enjoyed his concert so much the last time she was in New York, and the tea so much this trip, that she brought back one of his recordings for her friends to hear.

The Atlantans also went to the Havana Madrid Club for a rumba matinee. These matinees are rather like a tea-dance here, but Martha and Emily were the main attraction that afternoon!

With D'Avalos and Rodriguez, who have dancing schools in New York, the belles did two or three exhibition rumba dances. The people who go to the Havana Madrid really love to dance, for "The Dance" is the rumba — and the orchestra knows no other rhythm.

STILL ANOTHER Atlanta journalist has turned his talent to novel writing! Tarleton Collier, who wrote for a number of years on the Atlanta Georgian, where his column on politics was known as Behind the Headlines, is the newest author.

His novel, "Fire in the Sky," is a story of a working woman, whose earliest recollections are of a one-room, dirt-floored cabin in Georgia. It is the story of politics, love that never dies; it is, in the author's own words, "an odyssey of a humble person in quest of America." It will be off the press on August 28!

Mr. Collier, who is well known as a newspaperman, is at present an administrator of the Farm Security Administration, and is living in Montgomery, Alabama.

MISS MARY ISABELLE CHASE.

Miss Chase Will Be Bride Of Mr. Cothran August 31

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Chase announce the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mary Isabelle Chase, to Homer William Cothran Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer W. Cothran, the wedding to take place on August 31.

Miss Chase's maternal grandparents are Mrs. Frank Singleton and the late Mr. Singleton. Her mother was Miss Ruth Singleton before her marriage. On her paternal side, she is descended from the Chase family, of Atlanta and Columbus, long noted as leaders in the musical and cultural activities of these cities. Her paternal grandparents are Mrs. George Chase and the late Mr. Chase, who was co-founder of the Chase Conservatory of Music in Columbus.

The bride-elect graduated from Girls' High school, where she was a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha sorority. Miss Carolyn Chase is her twin sister and her brothers are George Chase and Charles H. Chase Jr.

Mr. Cothran graduated from Boys' High school and is associated in business with Carithers-Wallace-Courtenay, of Atlanta. He is the brother of James Cothran and his sister is Mrs. Carroll Everett.

The wedding will take place at the Druid Hills Baptist church, plans to be announced later.

Miss Gambrell Becomes Bride

Of interest to a wide circle of friends is the announcement made by B. L. Gambrell, of Greenville, S. C., of the marriage of his daughter, Miss Ruth Pearl Gambrell, of Atlanta and Greenville, to Dr. Francis Duncan Gibson Jr., of Gibson, N. C., and Hoschtion, Ga., which took place on Friday.

The bride's brothers are B. H. and C. W. Gambrell, of Columbia, S. C. Her sisters are Mesdames B. F. Skelton and J. I. Ellis, of Greenville. Her mother is Mrs. Lillie Bigby Gambrell.

Mrs. Gibson graduated from Pelzer (S. C.) High school and the Grady Hospital School for Nursing. She was valedictorian for the class of September, 1941, and received the loving cup for first honors.

Dr. Gibson is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Gibson Sr. His sisters are Mrs. J. W. Cooper, of Rensselaire, N. Y., and Miss Janice Marie Gibson, of Gibson, N. C. He has one brother, Marion Gibson.

Dr. Gibson graduated from Mars Hill Junior College, Mars Hill, N. C. He took his premedical course at the University of North Carolina and received his M. D. from Emory University. He served his internship at Grady hospital. Dr. Gibson's grandparents were the founders of Gibson, N. C.

After their wedding journey through Florida and the Carolinas, they will be popular additions to the younger set at Hoschtion, Ga., where Dr. Gibson is associated with Dr. Myron Allen in private practice.

Tri Deltas Give Rush Tea Saturday

Sixty sub-debs who will enter southern colleges in the fall will be guests on Saturday afternoon when the Atlanta Alliance of the Delta Delta Delta sorority entertains at a rush tea in their honor.

The party will be held from 4 to 6 o'clock at the home of Miss Aline Cooke at her home on Nancy Creek road.

A silver, gold and blue motif will carry out the sorority colors and a profusion of colorful flowers will beautify the reception rooms.

Receiving will be Mrs. Sam Meyer, vice president of the Atlanta Alliance; Miss Florrie Sisson, state rush chairman; Miss Anne Austin, treasurer, and Mrs. Erle Cooke, mother of the hostess.

Dr. Gibson is the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Gibson Sr. His sisters are Mrs. J. W. Cooper, of Rensselaire, N. Y., and Miss Janice Marie Gibson, of Gibson, N. C. He has one brother, Marion Gibson.

Additional parties to honor Miss Sewell will be announced later.

Mr. and Mrs. William Usher Norwood Jr., of Tallahassee, Fla., posed for the photographer after their marriage which was brilliantly solemnized last week at the First Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Norwood is the former Miss May Welner, attractive daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Welner.

Miss Maloof Becomes Bride In Gown of Duchess Satin

White California asters, white gladioli and palms beautified the altar of Saint Anthony's church yesterday afternoon when Miss Josephine Maloof, lovely daughter of Colonel and Mrs. Joe A. Maloof, became the bride of George Mansour.

Monsignor Croke officiated at 2:30 o'clock, and Miss Nell Jensen, organist, and Ray Ann Ellis, soloist, presented music.

Alfred Mansour served his brother as best man, and ushers were George Maloof, brother of the bride; and Nasor Mansour Jr., Miss Josephine Maloof, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a sapphire blue satin gown made with a snug midriff and a torso hipline. The full skirt ended in a slight train, and she carried a bouquet of pink roses, yellow roses and asters.

Velma Maloof was flower girl, wearing a pink marquisette and lace gown with a pastel nosegay tied with blue satin ribbon.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was a radiant figure in her wedding gown of gleaming Duchess satin. Fashioned on princess lines, the dress was designed with a heart-shaped neck accented by pearl clips, and a graceful train. Her veil fell from a halo of pearlized orange blossoms, and her bouquet was of white alba lilies, swansons, and orchids arranged in a cascade effect.

Mrs. Maloof wore for her daughter's wedding a gown of olive green crepe with brown accents and a shoulder spray of orchids. Mrs. Nasor Mansour, mother of the groom, wore beige lace with matching accessories and orchids.

Mr. Mansour and his bride left for their wedding trip to California, Mrs. Mansour wearing a wine crepe suit with gold buttons, which was accented by her accessories of royal blue. Upon their return, the popular couple will reside in LaGrange.

The Secret of the Marshbanks

Cherry Goes Home With Fran Marshbanks, Has Dinner With the Convalescing Amy

By KATHLEEN NORRIS

Synopsis of preceding chapters: Charlotte (Cherry) Rawlings, an orphan, has been at Saint Dorothea's convent school since she was seven years old. She knows almost nothing about her early history. But she has gradually realized that like the other girls at the school she has no family and she questions whether she has the right to her father's name. Judge Judson Marshbanks and Emma Haskell are her co-guardians. When she is twenty, Marshbanks tells her that Emma has gotten her a secretarial position in San Francisco with old Mrs. Porteous Porter, who is wealthy and a semi-invalid. She goes first to the Marshbanks mansion and dines alone with the judge as Fran, his young wife, and his niece Amy are dining out. Kelly Coates, an artist, drops in and Fran and Amy stop their way out. As they leave Cherry hears laughing and reference to her convent clothes and she is bitter. Life with Mrs. Porter is monotonous and she is thrilled when Kelly, horseback riding in the park with Fran, stops to talk with her while she is motoring with her employer. Later he sends her a box of candy and she is jealous when she sees him with Fran. A party given by Mrs. Porter. He stops to talk with her and she bursts out that she will never think about her because she is a Saint Dorothea's girl. Emma tells Cherry that her mother, Charlotte, was Cherry's mother. Kelly picks up Cherry in his old car to "chaperon" Fran on a visit to his Sausalito studio.

INSTALLMENT XIII
While they waited Cherry telephoned Emma; she had come with friends to Sausalito; they were delayed by the storm; they would be home in an hour; please tell Mrs. Porter that she was sorry. Emma answered that the old lady had felt ill after luncheon and was in bed, so that Cherry need not hurry. This tremendously relieved Cherry's mind.

Fran was restless and uneasy and Kelly miserable aware of it. His happy day was having the worst possible conclusion; he had long exhausted apology and encouragement, and could only settle down with his guests at the fire and make the best of a bad job. It seemed a long, long time before the honk of a taxi was heard outside. Fran insisted that Kelly should not come with them; they said hurried good nights and were off.

"Cherry," Fran said then, calling her by her name for the first time, "will you do me a great favor?"

"Of course," Cherry said with a slightly quickened beat at her heart and a puzzled look.

"I want you to come home with me. It's perfectly obvious," Fran explained, "that we've been caught in the rain together. I want my husband to know that you were with me."

Cherry was strangely stirred. Fran, the remote and proud, had made her the recipient of her confidence, or at least part of it. She said that she would gladly go home with Fran before going on to her own destination.

Fran did not pursue the subject further, and at 6 o'clock they entered the front door of the Marshbanks house. Molly and Martin, maid and butler, came forward immediately, and Fran asked anxiously if Judge Marshbanks was at home. No, not yet? Cherry felt the relief in her voice. Where was Rousseau?

"Right here, Madame." The chauffeur appeared and Fran drew him aside for a moment's earnest talk.

"Rousseau says Jud had to go to San Jose to court this afternoon," she then said, as she and Cherry went upstairs, "and he's coming back late with Mr. Trotter. So that's all right! You poor child, you're shivering. I have to go out to dinner, but why don't you stay and have some with Amy? The poor mouse is in bed with a cold!"

"Yes, do; yes, do!" called Amy from her room, and her first gesture of friendliness so warmed Cherry's heart that she could go to the room door and look in upon its pinkness and warmth and coziness as she explained: "I'm all wet and horrid!"

"Take a bath in my room, here; I'm dying of loneliness; all my friends are afraid," Amy said eagerly. "You've just been taking care of flu, so you're in no danger. Stay and have supper and talk. I'll lend you a hostess dress."

"I'd love it," Cherry said gladly. She was about to enter when an unexpected and unfamiliar voice behind her made her turn and find herself facing Fran and also facing a magnificently impressive older woman, a woman of perhaps seventy, who was staring at her with a surprised and unfriendly eye.

Fran had been welcoming this stranger, commenting upon her arrival a few days earlier than she had been expected from Florida, explaining her own plight. Now she introduced Cherry: "Miss Rawlings, Gran, Cherry, this is Mrs. Marshbanks, the judge's mother."

"Miss who?" demanded the old lady sharply, following Fran after a perfunctory nod to Cherry. Cherry heard Fran murmuring in answer: the words were indistinct, but her tone was conciliatory and apologetic. Suddenly the other woman's voice sounded clearly just before Fran's bedroom door closed:

"Of course I know who she is; I knew the minute I saw her. And I won't have Amy know her. I won't have her in this house!"

Cherry stood still for a moment, idly reflecting upon the bad temper of this proud, handsome old lady. At the moment it did not occur to her to attempt to give these words significance, still less to connect them in any way with her insignificant self. But they remained indelibly imprinted upon her memory, and the day came when they found their rightful place in her story.

Cherry had a reviving bath in Amy's amazing bathroom and came out to join Amy wearing an enchanting trailing creation of pale brown lace and pale blue crepe. The fat, kindly housemaid, May, who had met Cherry upon her first arrival from school, and who had later helped her buy her new outfit of coat and hats and dresses, had come into the room to find her something comfortable to wear.

Amy, during this process, was all affectionate enthusiasm and so contradicted Cherry's earlier impression of her that Cherry was bewildered by the contrast. Amy was lonely tonight; she had been ill; she was eager for companionship. So she made Cherry warmly welcome and the two girls chattered and laughed together like old and intimate friends as they discussed their supper trays.

Judge Marshbanks came into the room while Amy and Cherry were talking and seemed pleased to find them so cozy and friendly. He was tired after a long day in the San Jose court, and regretted frankly that he could not have supper with his niece and her companion.

"But Fran and I are going out to dinner; we must go and dress," he said. "So you got caught in the rain, did you, Cherry?"

"Oh, we were drenched!" Cherry said, achieving a cheerful and unalarmed tone. He was not so very angry, she thought; Fran had evidently told him what had occurred without arousing his jealousy.

"Over at Coates' place, eh?" "Yes," he has a darling studio looking out over the water." To her great satisfaction the judge seemed more interested in her than in what she was saying.

"Things going pretty well over at the 'Porter house'?" "They're both been sick, you know, Mrs. Porter—and Emma." She flushed brightly on the last word; it seemed disloyal still to call her no more than that.

But evidently he saw nothing amiss. He told her that she looked very nice in that thing of Amy's, and that Rousseau was taking Fran and him to the dinner and would then come back and wait for Cherry.

"Oh, I can walk! Only two blocks and it's stopped raining," she protested. But he would not hear of it. Rousseau was to call for them after their dinner party at half past ten; he would be on service anyway.

"Well, be good. Come and see us again Cherry," the judge said, and when he was gone the girls fell to eager talk again.

"What did you think of my grandmother?" Amy presently asked.

laughing. "What was the scolding about?"

"I don't know. I just heard her say that she wouldn't put up with something or somebody. She seemed cross!"

"She's always like that. She just got home from Palm Beach this morning, and you'd think she'd be tired. Luckily, Fran likes her. But she certainly rides Uncle Jud. Say, tell me," Amy said, narrowing her eyes as she looked at Cherry, "how do you like Kelly Coates?"

"I like him, don't you?" Cherry returned guardedly.

"I don't know him very well. He's about 31 really," Amy said indifferently. "But he's cracked about Fran!"

"I should think a lot of men would be."

"Well, I guess a lot are. But I'll bet she likes Kelly, too. How was it over there at his place? Did he and Fran hold hands and keep roaming off together?"

Cherry had to laugh at the tone and at Amy's mischievous expression. But she was quite serious as she said, "I don't think she'd deliberately do anything that would make your uncle jealous."

"Oh, he's not jealous!" Amy stated comfortably. "He'd never suspect anything if she was carrying on with someone right under his nose. He's madly in love with her. They've been married only three or four years. She had a beau last year, a German baron, and he used to be hanging around here."

"Maybe there's safety in numbers," Cherry put in, uncomfortable under these confidences. "She's had millions of beau," Amy said. "Cherry, were you ever in love?"

"Well, I sort of think—I sort of thought. I was. There was a heady delight in this sort of talk in the warm, softly lighted, sweet-scented room.

"I am," Cherry was relieved to have Amy launch into a detailed history of her hopeless passion for a young Italian who had given her lessons on the violin at school. It was very serious, Amy protested, when Cherry could not help laughing. She had smuggled letters to him and he had promised on his word of honor to get a divorce and come and ask her grandmother and Uncle Jud if he could marry her.

"Get a divorce! You mean he was married?" Cherry was so honestly shocked that Amy was more pleased than ever.

"Certainly he was, but he didn't love his wife. All the nice men are married."

"You oughtn't to talk that way!" Cherry protested, and Amy went into raptures and embroideries innumerable. "You, with your position and your wealth and your family and everything, to fall for a married violin teacher!" Cherry said severely more than once.

"As if those things mattered!" Amy answered airily. "They don't matter at all when you have them!"

"That's the only time they do matter at all," Cherry thought. "You're the ones that value them!" But she said nothing aloud, and the evening proved to be very pleasant. And she was driven home in state by Rousseau.

There was a light in Emma's room when she quietly climbed the stairs. Cherry went in, sat down near the bed and poured out the story of the day.

Your Horoscope for Today

By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Astrologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—Very favorable influences predominate before 4:47 p. m. for general business activities wholesale and retail, for dealings with professional people, for matters relating to education, for social and artistic affairs. There are times, however, when influences, while good, also lead to extravagance, and this period is one of them. After 4:47 p. m. avoid overexertion and take special care of health.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—Previous to 1:14 noon favors general business activities, dealings with executives and officials, and seeking favors. Between 1:13 p. m. and 11:07 p. m. discretion should be used around liquids and firearms.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Between 10:37 and 7 p. m. favors general business and professional activities, matters pertaining to law, religion and philosophy. After 7 p. m. suggests special care in driving.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Throughout the entire day and until 8 p. m. does not favor seeking favors or asking for long credits. Previous to 11:45 a. m. suggests using special care in travel.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—Previous to 9:48 a. m. appears to be the better part of day when you should make every effort to get conditions set in motion for progress. Between 9:48 a. m. and 4:30 p. m. care should be used to hold jobs and do not take on new obligations.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—The entire day and until 7:50 p. m. favors ordinary and routine matters. This is especially true in connection with communications, correspondence and conferences. After 7:50 p. m. favors social and entertainment fields.

September 23rd and October 22nd (LIBRA)—It will be wise to keep an eye on money matters today, for the tendency is toward extravagance and misapplication. The evening hours after 9:48 a. m. suggest unusual caution to avoid sharp and severe disappointment resulting from unexpected situations.

October 23rd and November 21st (SCORPIO)—Previous to 1:14 noon favors general business activities, dealings with executives and officials, and seeking favors. Between 1:13 p. m. and 11:07 p. m. discretion should be used around liquids and firearms.

November 22nd and December 21st (SAGITTARIUS)—The morning hours and until 1:13 p. m. are likely to be filled with petty irritations. This is a time to use caution in travel, communications, in the making of contracts and in anything that requires your signature. The remainder of the day and evening you will want to work at full speed.

December 22nd and January 19th (CAPRICORN)—During the entire day and until 10:11 p. m. does not favor speculative ideas. Between 11:23 a. m. and 3:52 p. m. favors interests pertaining to land. After 3:52 p. m. favors sticking to routine matters.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—Before 11:23 a. m. does not favor speculative ideas. Between 11:23 a. m. and 3:52 p. m. favors interests pertaining to land. After 3:52 p. m. favors sticking to routine matters.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—Greater gain will be attained by sticking to routine matters today. Remain away from things that are not strictly above board and cannot stand "the light of day."

Mrs. Roosevelt On Air Today In Scout Talk

First Lady's Address To Be Carried To Latin America.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt speaks over Columbia network in a talk to Girl Guides and Girl Scouts attending the Western Hemisphere Encampment today at 3:45 o'clock over WGST.

Mrs. Roosevelt addresses the Encampment as honorary national president of the Girl Scouts. She welcomes delegates from Western Hemisphere countries and speaks on the role of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts in helping the cause of hemispheric unity.

The Encampment is being held at Camp Bonnie Brae near Springfield, Massachusetts. Mrs. Roosevelt's talk takes up six of the 15 minutes. A Girl Scout opens by describing Mrs. Roosevelt's visit to the camp, then introduces her. After the President's wife speaks, the assembled girls sing "America, the Beautiful," "Cielito Lindo" and "Our Chalet."

Mrs. Roosevelt's talk is to be carried over the full Columbia network and shortwave to Latin America simultaneously over the CBS station, WCAE. A transcript of the talk is to be made and re-broadcast to the world Monday evening over CBS shortwave station WCBX.

LINCOLN FOLK'S LIFE TOLD ON "CAVALCADE"

Senator Stephen A. Douglas, the "Little Giant" from Illinois, who gambled his political astuteness against Abraham Lincoln's integrity in a bid for the United States Presidency, will be the central character in an unusual Cavalcade of America drama to be presented over the NBC-Red network, and WSB tonight at 9:30 p. m. Karl Swenson of the Cavalcade Players has been chosen for the role.

Douglas made Buchanan President, became the most powerful and most feared senator in congress and seemed destined to become Chief Executive in 1861. Yet this silver-tongued orator and crafty politician was resoundingly defeated at the polls and wound up holding Lincoln's tall silk hat at the latter's inauguration. Why he failed and how he finally rehabilitated himself in the eyes of the public by voting to preserve the Union will be told as the climax to Cavalcade's story.

MELTON AND WHITE ARE RADIO SOLOISTS

Featured on the Telephone Hour tonight at 7 o'clock with James Melton, Francis White, and Donald Voorhees' 57-piece Bell Symphonic Orchestra and Chorus, will be two enduringly popular songs that were not appreciated by their composers. The program will be heard over WSB.

Most composers are notoriously impractical, but Frederick Clay held a position of importance in the British treasury, where he had a chance to learn something about money. Yet he took less than 25 dollars for "I'll Sing The Songs of Araby"—and thought he had made a good deal. James Melton will feature this song on the Telephone Hour.

Edward MacDowell, on the other hand, thought so little of one of his songs that he threw it into the wastebasket. If his wife had not spotted it, liked it, and made him promise not to throw it out again, the world would never have heard one of its best-loved melodies, "To a Wild Rose," which will be Francis White's solo on Monday's Telephone Hour.

The program, "Introduction and Polonaise from 'Boris Godunov,'" by Moussorgsky, Chorus and Orchestra, will be sung by the "I'll Sing The Songs of Araby," by Clay, James Melton, tenor, and "To a Wild Rose," by MacDowell, Francis White, soprano.

The Rise Ensembles, The Nightingales, by Rimsky-Korsakoff, James Melton, Nelia Waltz, by Delibes, Orchestra, Don Quixote, by Massenet, by Massenet, James Melton and Francis White.

MARY VAN KIRK IS CONCERT STAR

Mary Van Kirk, young American contralto whose talent won her a contract with the Metropolitan Opera, will be guest on the Margaret Speggins program tonight at 7:30 o'clock over the NBC-Red and WSB. A native of Akron, Ohio, Miss Van Kirk was a winner of the Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air last spring.

Miss Van Kirk will sing "Stride La Vampa" from Verdi's "Il Trovatore" and "Love's Old Sweet Song" by Molloy. A 16-voice chorus under direction of Crane Calder will join in the latter selection and also will be heard in the traditional "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes."

Orchestral numbers, under Alfred Wallenstein's baton, will be the march from Wagner's "Tannhauser," "Capriccio Espagnol" by Rimsky-Korsakoff, and waltzes from Gounod's "Faust."

Blonde Miss Van Kirk has been called a "second Schumann-Heink" by several New York music critics. For the past four years she has been studying voice at the Cleveland Institute of Music.

BOND DEFENSE QUIZ

Q. What are the sales of United States Defense Bonds to date.

A. More than a billion dollars' worth! Deposits at the Treasury Department from the 3 months' sale of Defense Bonds amounted to $1,006,477,000 as of July 31, latest figures available.

Q. How does the government feel about the public response to the Defense Savings Program?

A. Very pleased. Secretary Morgenthau says: "The first billion has been raised in the American way, by co-operation rather than compulsion. I am confident that the second billion can be raised in the same democratic way, yet still more speedily."

Q. What do the latest figures show about bond purchases by individual citizens?

A. The figures for July show a 37 per cent increase over June for Series E Bonds—the "People's Bonds." Sales of Series E, F and G Bonds for the three months since the Defense Savings program started May 1 are as follows:

Item	Total	May	June	July
Series E	$348,373,000	$100,581,000	$102,517,000	$146,274,000
Series F	94,052,000	37,817,000	28,676,000	27,359,000
Series G	564,053,000	211,420,000	183,134,000	169,499,000

Total $1,006,477,000 $349,818,000 $314,527,000 $342,132,000

NOTE—To buy Defense Bonds and Stamps, go to the nearest postoffice, bank, or savings and loan association; or write to the Treasurer of the United States, Washington, D. C., for a mail-order form.

300 Benning Tanks Lead in Louisiana War

Georgia Detail Is First To Move in Maneuvers At Camp Polk.

CAMP POLK, La., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Three hundred tanks of the Second Armored Division, normally based at Fort Benning, Ga., led the Eighth Army Corps' attack southward tonight in the opening push of the Third Army's war games as dozens of pitched battles developed in a 30,000 square mile zone.

The armored division, commanded by Major General George S. Patton Jr., was a spearhead in a great fan-like movement of the Eighth Corps, which is opposing the Fifth Army Corps in the 12-day maneuvers.

All along the battle lines tonight units sought to hold positions against possible flanking movements in a complete "blackout." Details of the 10th Cavalry of the Eighth Corps fought skirmishes with similar forces trying to forge northward, presumably detachments of the Fifth Corps' 56th Cavalry Brigade.

The initial contacts were made today as the opposing forces moved into battle positions after the commander of the Third Army praised the morale of his men.

The spirit of troops now engaged in mock warfare in Louisiana "will make our Army the best in the world," Lieutenant General Walter Kreuger, commanding general of the Third Army, said in a broadcast today.

General Kreuger's talk, formally opening Third Army maneuvers in Louisiana, emphasized the huge task of concentrating men and equipment for the war games, the benefits they will bring in developing teamwork and co-operation, and the spirit of the men and officers.

"Realism is going to be particularly stressed during the maneuvers. Whether it is day or night, the troops must be concealed. At night this means that the men and vehicles must find their way about in the dark. That rainstorms and bad roads and blocked trails increase our difficulties need scarcely be mentioned.

"Maneuvers give training to all ranks and grades. Many individuals are now in the field for the first time, but the cheerfulness with which they are meeting the responsibilities of the new jobs and duties is indicative of the success that will be attained. Cheerfulness and high morale are parallel essentials to efficiency.

"In our training, health and physical development are given high priority, so that the personnel when necessary, can stand great hardships cheerfully. The seasoned soldier can do this because he knows how to take care of himself, conserve his strength and avoid useless effort."

100,000 TROOPS LEAP INTO ACTION

WITH THE ARMY IN SOUTH-WEST ARKANSAS, Aug. 17.—(AP)—A crisp dawn in the heavily wooded field headquarters of Major General Robert C. Richardson Jr., commanding the Seventh Army Corps, today snapped 100,000 troops into the first test of the south Arkansas maneuvers, set up to try the mettle of men and officers under the most rugged field conditions.

Dense woodlands bordering main highways in which elements of the Second Army have been in quiet bivouac since last week, literally "came alive" as soldiers swarmed from their hidden positions to execute the preliminary movements of the campaign.

Horse and mechanized cavalry, motor transport, assault boats and a series of major pontoon bridges thrown across the Little Missouri river for a night crossing by two divisions, entered into the first phase. The division movements assumed the destruction of all ordinary bridges and engineering regiments preceded the divisions to span the stream and clear roads through deep underbrush.

More than 40,000 troops moved up behind the engineers to cross the Little Missouri under complete blackout conditions. For hours after darkness fell, men and material moved westward over the pontons without benefit of any lights.

Umpires scored the results. The whole problem involved a screened advance toward the Oklahoma and Texas borders for the purpose of protecting the assembling of the Second Army in Arkansas.

Under the Army plan to give the maximum realism to the operations, Seventh Corps headquarters called attention in a bulletin to the steady worsening of relations between the "country of Almat—Arkansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee—and fabled Katmk—Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, Missouri, and Kentucky. The Seventh Army Corps is part of Almat's Blue Army, which will be built up in this area for the grand-scale war with Kotmk's Reds in Louisiana in September.

Vichy Starts Drive Against Its 'Unfaithful'

Officials Accused of Betraying Petain; Red Pressure Noted.

VICHY, Unoccupied France, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Simultaneous campaigns were launched in Vichy and German-occupied Paris today against government officials accused of betraying Chief of State Marshal Petain's national revolution and France appealed by radio to overseas possessions to remain faithful.

This coincided with pressure by French and German authorities against continuing Communist and other anti-collaborationist activity in the occupied zone. Joseph Barthelemy, new minister of justice, in an interview criticizing officials attempting to sabotage the government's work, expressed himself in almost the same terms as Editorial Writer Marcel Deat in L'Oeuvre in Paris. The Paris writer declared that the difference between the marshal's plan for national unity and the way the government was being administered was so great that discontent had reached a stage worse than in the period preceding the popular front uprising of 1936. He warned that "violent reactions might come."

Six Arrested After referring to "this type of wait-and-see policy," Barthelemy declared "it is no longer permissible for any interpreter of Marshal Petain's wishes to carry out his orders with feebleness."

Deat declared that "industrialists complain of veritable administrative sabotage in interpretation of legislative texts."

Six arrests were disclosed in the campaign against Communist activity in the occupied zone. The wives of two former Communist deputies, Gaston Midol and Pierre Benoit, were taken in custody in Paris for having drafted a letter which later was signed by accused Communist deputies and senators protesting their detention and criticizing the government.

Andre Thellier, a Communist leader, was arrested on a charge of possessing Communist tracts. The crime is of a type for which the death penalty recently was announced by the German high command.

Three persons were condemned to from 6 to 18 months' imprisonment on a charge of distributing anti-French propaganda at Montdidier, near Amiens.

Decrees in the official journal removed a number of mayors and municipal councilors in occupied and unoccupied zones.

Colonial Secretary Rene Platon appealed to French possessions in the American Hemisphere and the Pacific to maintain allegiance to the Vichy government. He inaugurated a new broadcasting station at Allouis, in the occupied zone west of Bourges, made available to Vichy by the Germans.

Protest Appointment Platon particularly urged island possessions in the Pacific to "continue your resistance."

Diplomatic developments also marked the day.

The French protested against British appointment of De Gaulle leader, General Georges Catroux, as commander of the armies of the Levant as a violation of the Syrian armistice terms allowing French troops a free choice between joining the De Gaulleists or returning to France.

France finally ceased relations with Nazi-conquered Yugoslavia and Yugoslav Minister Count Bogoljubovic was notified that he no longer would enjoy diplomatic standing.

The French government, however, has not yet officially recognized Croatia, formed from a part of Yugoslavia, as a sovereign state.

A communiqué said: "In view of the new situation created in Central Europe by the disappearance of the former kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes and the fact that the government of Belgrade no longer is exercising any authority over territories which made up the kingdom, the French government has been led to consider as ended the activity of the Yugoslav diplomatic and consular representatives in France and in territories of the empire."

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. MARIETTA, Ga., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Judge Benjamin Virgil Greer, 66, prominent Cobb county citizen and former justice of the peace, died at a private hospital in Atlanta yesterday after a short illness.

Judge Greer was born in Floyd county, but moved to Cobb county in childhood, attended the Cobb county schools and for a number of years engaged in business here. He was justice of the peace for the Marietta district for 20 years, retiring in 1932.

A member of the First Baptist church, he was active in Baptist church affairs in the county.

Funeral services will be held at the First Baptist church at 11 o'clock tomorrow morning, with the Rev. George Brown officiating. Interment will be in the City cemetery.

Surviving are his widow, a sister, Mrs. Mary Popkin, of Marietta; four brothers, C. T. Greer, of Marietta; J. T. Greer, of Floyd Station; H. A. Greer, of Denver, Colo., and G. W. Greer, of San Antonio, Tex., and a sister-in-law, Mrs. L. M. Greer, of Somerset, Ky.

U. S., Canada Called 'Safe' From Attack

LaGuardia, Colonel Biggar Describe Defense Collaboration.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(UP)—Defense collaboration of the United States and Canada in the past year has so prepared them against attack on either their eastern or western borders that they "need fear no power or combination of powers," Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, chairman of the United States section of the Permanent Joint Board on Defense, said today.

LaGuardia spoke with Colonel O. M. Biggar, chairman of the Canadian section, on a national broadcasting company program commemorating the first anniversary of the Ogdensburg agreement between Canada and the United States.

Colonel Biggar, speaking from Ottawa, said "Canada has sent to Great Britain a force of all arms which, in proportion to population, would be equivalent to a United States force of nearly 1,000,000 men."

"In the current financial year alone," he said, "Canada will expend more money on defense than Canada's whole war expenditure during the five years of the last great war. That expenditure during this single year will, in proportion to population, be nearly as great a burden as the whole national debt of the United States as this stood at the end of the last great war."

LaGuardia asserted that "every detail of every possible contingency arising out of any possible attack either in the west or in the east or from both has been worked out and ready for operation if it should come."

Newell Family Goes Military In Large Way

Three Sons in Uniform, Other Two Expect To Be Soon.

The family of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Newell, of 862 Vedado way, N. E., is truly a military family. Of five children, all boys in the family, three already are in uniform, and the other two expect to be sporting their khaki within the next month.

Their latest addition to the United States military forces is Lieutenant Robert Olin Newell, who was graduated from Georgia Tech last spring, received his commission as a second lieutenant, and transferred immediately to the Army Air Corps, and now is stationed at Tulsa, Okla.

The other two already in uniform are Lieutenant Byron Bruce Newell, a graduate of Annapolis, who recently was assigned as navigator on the U. S. S. Hornet, an airplane carrier. He is now at home on furlough, awaiting commissioning of the Hornet, while another brother, Lieutenant James Harold Newell, also an Annapolis graduate, is in the Naval Air Corps, attached to the U. S. S. Lexington, also an airplane carrier.

The two younger sons are William Carl Newell Jr., 17, a member of the R. O. T. C. unit at Boys' High school, and Charles Newell, who is only 15, and will enter Boys' High this fall, and immediately enroll for the R. O. T. C.

"All of us but mother and dad will soon be in uniform," the youngest member of the family said yesterday afternoon. "Then my brothers want to try to arrange furloughs at the same time so that we can all get together and have a family picture made."
